WESTERN FRONT GUNS OPEN FIRE

Storm Cuts Down Special Election Vote

FEW BRAVING SNOW TO CAST VOTES TODAY

Total Expected to Fall Short of Estimated 40,000 for 17th District.

LICKING SNOW DEEPEST

Ashbrook Makes Final Appeal for Support in Radio Talk From Capital.

Heavy snowfall over all six counties of the 17th district was expected to keep the vote down in a special election today in which a congressman will be chosen to fill the unexpired term of the late William A. Ashbrook of Johnstown.

Early voting in Richland county, heavier than in the special primary just three weeks ago, indicated about 6,600 voters would go to the polls, far under the anticipated 10,000. There were 4,438 votes cast in the special primary.

Main highways and streets were cleared early today, although driving was still hazardous, but the heavy snowfall threatened to block secondary roads.

Total vote in the district was expected to drop below the 40,000 forecast earlier this week by the secretary of state. In Richland county election board officials had forecast a possible 10,000 votes with favorable weather.

Today's election, called by Gov. John W. Bricker in the 17th and 22nd Ohio districts, pitted J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton county, Republican majority floor leader in the Ohio house of representatives, against Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown banker and nephew of the late Congressman Ashbrook, in the 17th district.

Polls will be open until 6:30 p. m. today and county election board officials anticipated the first returns by 7 p. m. Tabulation of the votes should be completed in short order, they said, because there are only two names on the ballot and the total vote probably will be light. It was expected the complete county returns will be in by 8:30 or 9 p. m.

Contenders in the 22nd district, comprising sections of the Cleveland area, were Anthony J. Fleger, Democrat, of Parma, and Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton, widow of Congressman Chester Bolton, Republican, who formerly represented the district. The 22nd district is strongly Republican and the campaign there lacked the color of the battle in the 17th district.

Republicans claimed the heavy snowfall brightened their chances for victory in the 17th by making driving hazardous and reducing the vote in rural sections where they figured they would find the stiffest opposition. They recalled that in his own victory prediction yesterday Ashbrook yesterday based his hopes on "decent weather."

Snowfall was particularly heavy in Ashbrook's home county, Licking, which in 1938 cast more votes for governor than any other county in the district. Snow was five inches deep in Newark, the county seat.

Snow, Snow, It's Really Getting Us

Ohio was covered by a new blanket of snow today—a thick one and the citizens were getting a wee bit weary of it, even though once snow was considered something to admire.

That's the trouble with snow—when you get too much of it, you lose your appetite for it, just as you do for lobster Newburg if you should be fortunate as to have it every day.

But the weathermakers — whoever they are — care not that you and you and you may be tired of snow, so they're going to send some more tonight, along with some colder weather. Tomorrow, however, they don't figure to send any. That's what the forecast says, but you don't have to believe it, because the days when it hasn't snowed have been few and far between and there was no explanation offered for the failure to schedule some for tomorrow.

* * *

The snow—in case you're interested in the technical details—measured three inches in Mansfield at 9 a. m. (Shucks, there are old newspapermen who can remember when a three-inch snow would be worth dragging out the biggest, blackest type in the place, but look where this story landed) and in other places, such as Ottawa, it was six inches deep. Fremont had five inches. Dayton was lucky; it only got an inch and a half.

And the stuff was so sticky and heavy that highway crews were having a tough time of it. In this county, they've been out since 4 a. m. striving to keep the roads clear (and probably cussing this weather as much as George Spelvin, (average citizen) and not having too much luck at it. State highway patrolmen reported travel in all directions hazardous.

* * *

Licking county was having a bad time of it, too. Ordinarily that would be of only passing interest, but Licking county folks are supposed to go to the polls to vote in today's special election, and the chances were pretty good that they would stay at home just like their Richland county neighbors and let the candidates fight it out practically single-handed.

At noon here, the temperature was 33. The low during the night was 21. We've already told you the snowfall measured three inches.

Gosh, but we're tired of snow.

Pictures Revitalize League as Answer to Peace Problem

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Some form of confederation of nations—possibly using the mechanism of the virtualy defunct League of Nations—must be devised if the world is ever to have peace, Dr. Benjamin Gerig, writer and authority on world affairs, said last night at the final session of the Rotary and University clubs' Institute of International Understanding at Senior high school.

Dr. Gerig concluded the series of four lectures on international problems before an audience reduced to about 450 by the inclement weather. He spoke on "Can a Peaceful World Order be Organized?"

Discussing three proposed peace plans in Europe, including a Federal Union, Continental Federation, and a reconstructed League of Nations, Dr. Gerig favored the reconstructed league possibly because he served for 10 years as a member of the League of Nations secretariat and edited the league's "Fortnightly News."

"A revitalized league with force behind its law, incorporating the better principles of the league, may be the answer to the peace problem," he said, "but a United States of Europe will be impossible for sometime."

"First we must have an armistice, and the neutral states, includ-

Confusion Aids Propagandist, First Forum Speaker Asserts

Propaganda works best when there's confusion, but there's a feeling abroad that the United States won't fall "for the old line again," Edward J. Eggl, Toledo professor, asserted last night as he launched the Open Forum series at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom.

His lecture, the first of a series of five sponsored by Catholic societies of Mansfield, concerned "Propaganda and Public Opinion" and was heard by an audience of 300.

"The propagandists are already working to make us hate the totalitarian powers and to build up our sympathies for the democracies," Eggl said. "There is a definite possibility that Finland may become the Belgium of the present war and that it may lead us to something more than sympathy. Already the atrocity stories are coming in."

Eggl then went into an analysis of propaganda, how it works and other phases of the question and used some of the deductions of the Institute of Propaganda Analysis to emphasize his points.

"This institute cites seven points as the tricks of the paid propagandists," he said.

"There's the name calling device, such as the labeling of the Germans as Huns during the past

THREE FORMER OFFICIALS TO GO FREE OCT. 1

Ports, Erdenberger, Marvin, Serving Embezzling Terms, Granted Paroles.

SENTENCED YEAR AGO

Convicted of Taking $8,700, Trio Will Have Served 18 Months and 18 Days.

Three former public officials of Richland county, serving sentences in the Ohio penitentiary for embezzlement of public funds, were paroled today by the Ohio pardon and parole commission, their releases to be effective Oct. 1.

The three men, all of whom entered the penitentiary on the same day—March 13, 1939—are Allen K. Ports, former clerk of Mansfield municipal court, convicted of embezzling $4,259; Russell Erdenberger, former clerk of the Mansfield conservancy district composed of Mansfield and Madison township, convicted of embezzling $1,777; and A. F. Marvin, former clerk of the village of Plymouth, sentenced for embezzling $2,700.

All of the men, sentenced to one-to-10 year terms, will have served 18 months and 18 days when they are released next Oct. 1.

Ports is a son of Col. J. Earl Ports, former Mansfield mayor and lieutenant colonel in the Ohio National Guard, who is seriously ill at the military hospital in Dayton.

Made Restitution.

He was convicted after a state auditor had found discrepancies in his accounts of municipal court funds.

Ports and his father raised the entire amount of money involved and made restitution to the city.

The three cases came before the county grand jury the latter part of February and all three were indicted on March 2, and after pleading guilty were sentenced.

Erdenberger, conservancy tax collector, embezzled funds which had been paid into the city and township conservancy tax by property owners.

Marvin, village clerk for six years, had resigned in January, 1939, after an examiner found a shortage in his books.

Prosecutor Glenn Marriott said today that he had recommended

PRAISE SILENCE

Democratic Senators Approve FDR Third Term Mystification.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Two senate Democrats today staunchly defended President Roosevelt's silence regarding his third term intentions and assailed "Democratic politicians" pressing the chief executive to disclose his plans.

Senators Hughes of Delaware and Herring of Iowa asserted that the presidential silence was "healthy for the party."

"It will be a good thing for the party if the president keeps his silence," said Hughes. "In that way we may avoid some state fights that otherwise would injure Democratic harmony. An uninstructed convention would be healthy."

A third Democratic senator, Clark of Idaho, agreed with a statement by Herring that the international situation might develop an "emergency" which would make reelection of Mr Roosevelt 'imperative.'"

Report Troop Concentration Along Frontier

Luxembourg Villages Feel Explosion; Paris Has First Air Raid Warning In Months as Nazi Bombers Drone Over Capital.

(By Associated Press)

Massed scouting flights over Paris and Berlin, German air raids on the British coast, artillery firing and new troop concentrations near the Luxembourg frontier today stirred the long dormant western front at the first hint of spring weather.

A sudden thunder of artillery shook Luxembourg frontier villages near the northern terminus of the western front. Residents of the little neutral duchy, wedged between the German and French lines, reported seeing masses of fresh Nazi soldiers behind the front lines.

Paris had her first air raid alarm since Nov. 23 as massed squadrons of German planes droned over the capital without dropping any bombs during a night which saw extensive aerial activity in western Europe. Britain announced her scouting planes had penetrated Germany as far as Berlin and also flown over the German Baltic region.

Two German bombers were shot down today off the east coast of Britain, the air ministry announced.

Finland speculated on the effect of spring on her war with Russia, saying that until then the full effect of losing the Koivisto coastal fortifications would not be felt, but that by spring other developments might make Finland's picture more favorable.

Russian man-power continued to surge against Finnish defenses on the Karelian isthmus as Finnish withdrawals shortened the line they must defend on that bitterly contested front.

The Red army reported capturing the 788th Finnish fortification and announced extensive arms and ammunition had fallen into their hands with capture of the Koivisto fortifications on the Gulf of Finland.

Two special American envoys, sent to Europe by President Roosevelt because of the wars, launched the active work of their missions in Rome.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, having conferred first with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, set aside the day for talks with the British, French and German ambassadors before continuing on his journey to Berlin, Paris and London.

Myron C. Taylor, the president's personal representative to Pope Pius XII, had his first audience with the pontiff. Taylor is charged with co-ordinating with Vatican and White House peace efforts.

HELSINKI: Finns Battling Grimly Against New Drives

(By United Press)

HELSINKI, Finland—Smashing into the Mannerheim line in apparent disregard of the expenditure of men and materials, Russian troops are attacking the western flank of the Finnish defenses with Viipuri, their goal, only a few miles away, reports from the front said today.

Their determination increased by the realization that with the loss of the Koivisto island fortresses their chances of holding the Russians had decreased considerably, Finns in the front line defended their position stubbornly.

Field guns, machine guns and rifles rained death on the advancing Russian waves, but the waves came on

A new and intensified Russian attack started yesterday, reports said. The capture of Koivisto had made things easier. For weeks the gulf forts, turning their guns inland, had enfiladed the Russian lines. Now the Russians had their flanks clear and could concentrate on the frontal attack.

It was reported that so far the Finns held their line well.

Other Russian armies were attacking the center and east of the Mannerheim line in force, but less anxiety was held here regarding those positions.

MOSCOW —(INS)— New Russian military successes on the Karelian isthmus were claimed by the Soviet high command in a war communique today.

"Soviet troops on the Karelian isthmus continued destroying enemy fortifications," the bulletin said

"The enemy attempted to counter-attack but was repulsed with heavy losses

PARLEY: Welles Sees Duce, Leaves For Berlin Tonight

(By United Press)

ROME—Sumner Welles, making a sudden change of plans, announced today that he would spend a night in Switzerland on his way to see Adolf Hitler and that he expected to visit Premier Benito Mussolini again after seeing Hitler and the British and French premiers.

Meantime, Welles disclosed that a signed letter from President Roosevelt, which he presented to Mussolini yesterday, was "merely a letter of presentation containing greetings." The letter had aroused much speculation on whether Mr. Roosevelt sent Mussolini a personal message in reference to peace possibilities.

Leaving here at midnight tonight, Welles, President Roosevelt's special envoy to investigate the state of war and chances of peace, had intended to go direct to Berlin, arriving tomorrow night.

He announced at a press conference he would stop in Switzerland tomorrow night both because he [illegible] and because he wanted to talk to American Minister Leland Harrison.

At a press conference Welles said

"The head of the Italian government has been good enough to say that he will be glad to see me on my way back and I hope I may have that opportunity." He said that he had found his talks with Mussolini and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, yesterday "very helpful."

Predicts Boom In Building of Small Homes

Decorators Develop New Color Schemes

NEW YORK—Decorators' colors for this season's rooms are surprisingly close to the colors of women's dresses. Colored sketches and photographs of rooms done by the members of the American Institute of Decorators revealed this fact in a recent exhibition.

The members of this organization are using with great success some of the soft pastels so much in favor for resort and evening wear. Dusty rose, aquamarine blue and sun tan make walls which are flattering, to a hostess's complexion as well as her costumes.

These new wall colors, while soft, are well defined and are not at all like the so-called neutral colors of a few years ago, which were neither one thing or the other For all their intrinsic charm however, they have the virtue of adaptability and are easy to combine with a wide range of colors in curtain and upholstery fabrics and in both plain or figured carpets and rugs.

Pale blue is evidently a favorite One room with pale blue walls shows ashes-of-roses window curtains and a sofa covered in a slightly deeper rose. A pale yellow chair gives a distinguished accent, reinforced by a carpet which is a deeper blue than the walls. Lavender, mustard yellow and celadon green all come into play for the walls of this group of smartly decorated rooms. Some have white trim; others, a trim slightly darker than the walls.

Off-white painted walls are still holding their own. The white is slightly tinted with the dominating color of the room's furnishings. If the carpet is green, a small amount of this color, mixed with the white paint for the walls, helps to create a subtle unity. More daring, and requiring the handling of an experienced decorator, are walls in stronger tones, as, for example, a formal living room with walls painted medium green and the trim in white. A dining room has definitely blue walls, another terra cotta. One notes a tendency to have the carpet the same color as the walls, but in a darker tone. One decorator, however, uses mustard yellow walls with a rose carpet.

Fortunately, fabrics can be found in these new, soft tones, and the modern way of using plenty of mirror glass and crystal accessories in a room helps to give them an alluring sparkle. Sometimes the space between the fireplace mantel and the ceiling is taken up with a glistening sheet of mirror and small glass ornaments abound on book shelves, tables and desks.

Weather-Seal Sash Wins Favor

Home owners recommend Weather-Seal combination storm sash and screens for three reasons, M. E Madden, local manager for Weather-Seal, Inc., pointed out. . because they cut down fuel costs, keep dirt and do double duty summer and winter.

Weather-Seal storm sash is claimed to save up to one-third on fuel consumption during the winter, while women report that their cleaning burden is reduced by installation of storm sash.

Weather-Seal plays another economy role, too, in that the sash are interchangeable and may be used for screens in the summer, Mr. Madden said.

TO DRAW GOLD LINES

To draw gold bronze lines and stencil on calcimine, it is said that yellow dextrine stirred into water until it is the consistency of light varnish is often superior to regular varnish liquids.

Good Business Calls for Good Planning

Profitable real estate developments begin with the land, its location, its planning, and its suitability for a specific purpose. From its review of hundreds of subdivisions, the Land Planning Division of the Federal Housing administration is convinced that successful subdivisions are founded upon intelligent planning and the adoption of sound development programs. It is essential that every residential neighborhood be protected against adverse influences which may occur through undesirable land uses. Modest houses and attractive natural settings give both of these neighborhoods a distinctive character. Lack of proper protective measures has permitted the encroachment of a gas station and garage on one street, however, injuring the investments of the purchasers.

Specializes In Floor Covering

The Mansfield Rug and Linoleum company, 110 North Main street, specializes in floor coverings for every room in the home, it being Mansfield's only exclusive floor covering store. Complete selections, displayed for easy choosing, feature every conceivable pattern and color, in carpets, rugs and linoleums, and color schemes may be studied and analyzed at the store before selection is made.

Every installation is made by this store's own factory-trained workmen, assuring a correct fit and permanency.

A personalized service in fine Armstrong and Sealex linoleums is offered through the use of special borders and insets, permitting the widest latitude in individualizing any floor.

Of special interest are the display booths, showing the use of the new wall linoleums, which are becoming more and more popular because of their attractiveness and the ease by which they are kept clean and spotless.

Henry F. Brinkman, owner of this store, has had many years of experience in solving floor covering problems in Mansfield and vicinity.

MIX TROUBLES?

Inadequately stirred paint frequently causes unsatisfactory results. The painter depending upon stick stirring of a keg of paint, often fails to achieve the proper blending of oil and pigment so vitally important to the body, flow and color of the coating.

In addition, several ounces of pigment are likely to be left adhering to the bottom of the keg which is sheer waste. There is an efficient triple-action agitator or mixer now on the market which is designed to eliminate mixing troubles.

INSULATE PIPES

All hot water plumbing lines are regarded as a source of heat loss because of the amount of pipe surface exposed compared to the amount of hot water carried. In order to minimize such losses the pipes and hot water tank should be insulated.

GOOD HOUSE COMBINATION OF VITAL FACTORS, EXPERTS SAY

In esthetics there can be no final judgments, Federal Housing Administration architects declare, but beauty in a home often consists in the simplicity of the relation between form and function.

A good house is a properly related arrangement of good walls, good roof, good windows, and good doors, just as an ugly house is a poor arrangement of these units, it is pointed out.

The first function of a wall is to keep out weather, and, it is believed, the simpler the wall, the better it looks. If the right material has been selected originally, it should hold true for all four walls and should not be varied in different parts of the house without cause.

Ornate Tudor imitations and other homes where a hodge-podge of exterior materials is used frequently give an incongruous effect and are disturbing rather than pleasing.

The longer the roof line, the more peaceful and pleasing the effect, it is said. Badly proportioned attic and dormer windows, irregularities, sharp angles, and a variation of roof colors are factors which tend to spoil the appearance of roofs. Frequently over-sized conspicuous chimneys ruin an otherwise good roof line. Chimneys should be grouped together as far as possible for economy, efficiency, and looks, and again simplicity.

Windows and doors are also important features of a home esthetically as well as functionally. They should be simple in shape and of generous proportions, and a correct relationship between window and wall should exist. Well-designed bay windows add useful space within and attractive form without, but one dominating the main portion of the house is likely to be awkward.

The design of the garage should be purely functional in nature without "false front" decoration.

WALLPAPER FASHIONS CHANGING YEARLY JUST LIKE CLOTHES

Fashions in wallpaper, like fashions in clothes, change from year to year. The changes are gradual, and not always noticeable at first glance, but change they do according to M. E. Cole, manager Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, 28 S. Park street. You might suppose that a Colonial wallpaper, for example, would remain unaltered from season, but this is not the case. Subtle changes in both design and color give new life to ideas that are centuries old, so that your Colonial house, for instance, while keeping an unmistakable eighteenth century charm, is nevertheless as up to the minute as today's newspaper.

There is a definite trend toward patterns that have dignity plus imagination—a new version of tried and proven Colonial designs that are eminently suitable for the contemporary American home. Instead of copying antique papers slavishly, the wallpaper style leader has adopted to a certain extent the philosophy of the contemporary decorator, who strives for the expression of an idea rather than correctness alone. Not only are these new papers as beautiful as the antique ones, but they are practical as well. Imperial papers, as an example, are made washable and fast to light so that their beauty will endure and you need have no fear of extravagance when you decide to use them in your home.

Stripes, with an incredible number of variations, have revived a fashion that was at its height in the early eighteen hundreds.

Columns of flowers or quaint landscapes are separated by stripes of filigree or plain bands of contrasting color. Plain stripes in every conceivable width and combination of color are more important than ever, blending with uncanny ease into any scheme of decoration. For dramatic decor there are stripes with startling contrasts; for more low-keyed livable rooms there are stripes of all types and widths blended with an appropriate subtlety.

Also new in the field of wallpaper is the ensembling of two and sometimes three papers. There has always been great difficulty in finding papers for adjoining rooms which have a decoratively sound relation to each other. Now, with sympathetic foresight, this problem has been overcome. Most often, two papers are planned with identical colored backgrounds, but with complementary patterns. Thus, an arrangement of soft toned medallions separated with subtle stripes will have for its companion paper the same Imperial design with the stripes omitted, or with the stripes retained and the medallion omitted.

FHA Officials Sees Shift to $4,000 Class

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Private industry not only can build sound small homes for families with low incomes but is going to build them in greatly increased volume this year, Administrator Stewart McDonald predicted today.

The last few years have seen a shifting emphasis on the part of the building industry in the direction of homes costing less than $4,000, McDonald said. "This trend is running strongly ahead," he added.

Homes are being built in growing numbers which cost only $4 to $6 per room per month to own, the administrator stated. This means that well-designed and constructed homes are within the purchasing and owning power of families whose annual incomes are $1,500 and less.

To support his prediction of a rapidly expanding amount of this type of residential construction, McDonald pointed to striking year-to-year gains under the FHA's program in this field. During 1939, he said, 70,563 new homes constructed and financed under the FHA plan require payments of less than $25 a month to cover all mortgage charges, including gradual reduction of principal.

This number represented more than one half of all mortgages on new homes insured by the FHA during the year. It was a gain of more than 50 per cent over the number of homes in this category built under the FHA plan in 1938 and a gain of more than 275 per cent over the camparable 1937 figure.

McDonald also cited impressive gains in the number of homes built under the FHA program valued at less than $3,500, excluding land. There were 34,539 of these homes built in 1939, or approximately one-quarter of all individual new homes financed under the FHA plan. The payments on a $3,500 loan are only about $20 a month. This total represented a gain of more than 40 per cent over the number of such homes built under the FHA plan in 1938 and of 225 per cent over the corresponding 1937 figure.

"The whole emphasis of the building industry has been FHA's operations," McDonald said. "In 1938, amendments to the National Housing Act made FHA-insured mortgage terms more favorable for homes valued under $6,000. Down payments of as low as 10 per cent were permitted on new homes in this category, together with a 25-year payment period, while larger loans required heavier down payments and were permitted only 20 years for repayment.

"Now the FHA is turning the attention of builders to homes in even lower price ranges by making more flexible financing available on loans of $2,500 or less. In response to the FHA's efforts, industry is laying plans for building, with private capital, a much larger number of minimum cost homes this year than ever before."

Gas Supply Holds Up In Spite of Cold

Interesting figures on the temperatures and gas consumption for January have just been released by W. C. Mead manager of the gas company. January, 1940, was the coldest month in 22 years. The average temperature for the month was 17.7 degrees. This is 17.6 degrees colder than January last year.

The period of January 22 to February 2, 1936 represented the only consecutive period of 31 days when the average temperature was lower than at any time since 1918. These figures were supplied by the Weather Bureau for Central Ohio, the geographic center of territory served by the local gas company.

During January, 1940, the company delivered more gas to domestic, commercial, industrial and wholesale customers than for any similar 31-day period in its history. In times of extreme cold temperatures, not only do regular gas heat customers use more gas but, also, those who use other fuels fall back on gas heaters and range ovens to supplement their central heating plants.

Throughout the period of unusual gas demands, it was unnecessary to curtail supplies to local industries, which would have resulted in laying off employes. No domestic customer was without gas through failure of supply.

Success in meeting these extreme conditions was attributed to having sufficient reserve wells and an extensive system of underground storage. Some of the reserve wells which were drawn upon for gas had been held in readiness for several years to meet such an emergency.

Also, the company's storage operations provide for bringing gas from West Virginia during the summer when demands are low and forcing it back into the ground of nearly exhausted Ohio fields. Such gas is more available to the markets when needed. The company had some 12 billion cubic feet of gas in storage when the cold spell set in. On certain days as much as 50,000,000 cubic feet were removed from storage.

Urges Building At Present Time

To get the most for your building dollar, now is the time to build, LaVerne Henry of the Tinkey Lumber company, points out, "because all indications point to an increase in prices in the very near future."

Factors contributing to the anticipated increase are the growing demand for homes that has been evidenced since early last spring and the rising costs of materials because of war conditions.

Prices generally, however, have shown little change during the past two days, and the home owner is still able today to take advantage of currently low prices, Henry said.

Modern Fixtures Do Double Duty

Gone are the days of dull, dark, sight-straining rooms—today's homes are wired to provide tested illumination for reading, sewing, or just plain "setting," according to A. R. Anthony and Paul Snyder, co-owners of the National Electric company, 74 North Walnut street.

Today's fixtures not only provide sight-saving light, they also add beauty and charm to the home. Possibilities of decoration with light are innumerable; and the National Electric company keeps a stock of lights that will enable any home owner to select fixtures that will fit in with a room of any period.

In addition, the company maintains a staff of technicians who will plan home wiring for the home owner so that he can have sufficient outlets for maximum convenience in the use of today's step-saving, back-saving electrical appliances.

WHEN PAINT YELLOWS

If white-painted storm sash, doors or other removable accessories to a house turn yellow during storage months, such yellowing will probably bleach white again after exposure to the sunlight. Linseed oil has a tendency to turn yellow if kept in a dark place and bleach white again when returned to sunlight. This performance may be repeated time and again.

New and Used Materials Are Available Here

For the home builder with a limited amount of money to spend for new construction or remodeling, the Mansfield Wrecking and Materials company, 585 North Main street, maintains a well stocked supply of quality building materials, both new and used.

Here the builder can find windows of all sizes, flooring, millwork, lumber, plumbing and wiring to fit almost every need, and are adding to our line a complete stock of paints, roof coatings and plumbing supplies, according to Dave Lapine, manager of the company.

The company specializes in lumber and flooring, most of its materials having been culled from large wrecking jobs both in Mansfield and out of the state.

Another feature of the company's service is its wrecking facilities. In its brief history, it has wrecked buildings as far away as Maine and the Rio Grande.

Estimates may be secured on materials for new construction as well as on wrecking, Lapine said, and this service is rendered without any cost or obligation.

All the used material sold is guaranteed to be 100 per cent usable and satisfactory.

HOME FINANCING MUCH IMPROVED

More than half of the 3,072 counties of the United States lacked adequate home-financing facilities in 1932. Today practically every section of the country is served by institutions which meet the mortgage-lending needs of their communities.

The difference may be attributed in part to the establishment of 635 new Federal Savings and Loan associations by local groups of citizens since 1938, when Congress authorized the chartering and supervision of such institutions. Federal associations are permitted to lend on homes within a 50-mile radius of their home office.

An equally important factor was the entrance of commercial banks and other lenders into the long-term home-financing field as a result of the National Housing Act, which established the Federal Housing Administration.

Color Planning Guide New For Spring Painting

A new and more accurate way of planning color motifs for both exteriors and interiors of homes is being offered this year by the Sherwin-Williams company, 9 Park Avenue west, acording to Robert Rowe, manager.

This new service, an exclusive Sherwin-Williams service, is built around the new Color Guide which shows, in natural color photographs, completely planned rooms, color schemes for the interiors of homes of different styles and exteriors of homes of different sizes.

In addition, the guide also shows swatches of materials suggested for furniture, drapes, and rugs. It suggests the best combinations of colors and materials and include color chips of the various Sherwin-Williams products.

The Color Guide is on display at the store's showrooms, while painters affiliated with Sherwin-Williams also carry the guide. Details of the plan may be secured at the store, or by calling your paperhanger or painting contractor, Rowe stated.

I Like My WESTINGHOUSE
Electric Range Because . . .
Electric Cookery
Is Quick . . .
Dependable

Says Mrs. Avery Kinley
107 Parkwood Blvd.

A Westinghouse Range User For Nearly a Year

Mrs. Kinley preparing a complete dinner in Economy Cooker of her Westinghouse Range.

"You'll Like the New Westinghouse Electric Range, Too!
Because Cooking Electrically Is as Easy as Snapping On Your Lights!"

HOUSEWIVES AGREE:

Cooking the Westinghouse Way Is---

CLEAN

Because there is nothing to burn with electricity, you have no smoke, soot, or carbon. Cuts housecleaning time.

SAFE

Electric cookery is safe because there is no danger of explosion or leakage of fumes. You don't have to worry with electricity.

FOOD SAVING

Because oxidization is eleminated with electricity, food shrinkage is cut. Many women save 25 per cent on food costs. You, too, can afford better vegetables, finer cuts of meat with the saving.

"What a boon a Westinghouse range is to the housewife! Westinghouse electric cookery is the fastest way to prepare a complete way I know of. And the beauty of it is, I can always depend on my meats and pastries coming out evenly cooked. I've never seen or heard of anything like it. You'll like it, too, I'm sure, because cooking electrically is no harder than snapping the switch to your lights. It certainly saved me lots of work."

COOKING ELECTRICALLY IS INEXPENSIVE!

Ever since Mrs. Kinley bought her range from Martin's nearly a year ago, she's kept a record of costs. To cook for her family of two has cost her only 83c per month! Less than 3 cents a day.

Chelsea Special, Kent Stripe New For Draperies

Ensembled prints with matching backgrounds and harmonious patterns are used in modern draperies and slip covers that lend a charming setting and an authentic "decorator" touch. Both the floral and the stripe in exclusive designs now on display at Scattergoods are printed on a durable 50-inch closely woven crash in a wide range of high-fashion colors. They are sunfast, tested for washability and pre-shrunk.

(The average residual shrinkage of Chelsea Special and Kent Stripe will not exceed 2 per cent under Federal Specifications test CCCT-191A). The rich designs on deeper backgrounds do not show soil readily. In spite of their real beauty, fashion significance and serviceability, these fabrics are surprisingly inexpensive and may be used with dramatic effect throughout the house.

Homemakers who seek to individualize rooms by combining two or more prints will appreciate the convenience of finding mated fabrics which were designed for each other and are sure to produce a harmonious effect when used together.

The ensemble of Chelsea Spesial and Kent Stripe is featured in "House & Garden", and both these lovely patterns in a full range of decorator shades can be obtained at Scattergood's Drapery Section, Third and Walnut streets.

Featherweight Sewing Machine Has All Features

At last! The sewing machine that does everything but lay the pattern on the material is on the market. It's the new featherweight White Rotary electric now being shown at the White Electric Sales.

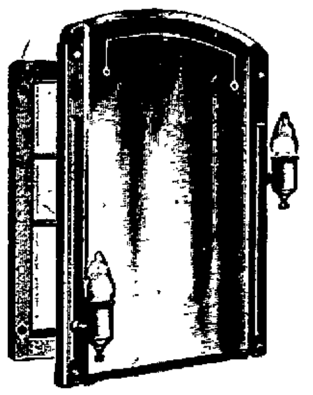
This convenient new machine, which will do everything that a cabinet model does, is compactly fitted into a smart airplane luggage case which can be easily carried from room to room.

The machine, which weighs 10 pounds less than the ordinary portable, achieves its lightness from a new featherweight metal. A boon to the women who do their own sewing this tricky new portable sews backwards as well as forwards, has a built-in sewing light, a hemstitching attachment, tension and stitch control devise, and a hinged presser foot which automatically adjusts to various thickness of fabric.

And as an added feature of convenience—you can pack your newly made spring wardrobe in the smart machine case when you leave for your Easter week-end trip.

ROOF DRAINAGE

Roofs, flashings, and valleys should be built to shed the water and turn it toward gutters and outlets as fast as possible. Gutters and leaders should have capacity for the maximum amount of water and yet not too large to be wasteful.



For Your BATHROOM

Here's a medicine cabinet ensemble with adjustable lights that adds convenience and charm to any bathroom. Large roomy cabinet plus sight-saving lamps makes this an ideal ensemble.

Gay Patterns In Wallpaper

Wallpaper patterns for 1940 will be gay and colorful with a trend toward pastel colors, according to J. K. Stonebrook, manager of the Mid-Ohio Wallpaper Corporation store, 101 North Main street.

Florals as well as stripes are proving popular this year, Stonebrook says, and the store has made every effort to secure as many of these patterns as possible.

Mid-Ohio will continue to offer the best possible papers at prices consistent with quality materials, he said The store also carries a complete line of paints and varnishes as well as painters and wallpaperer's tools and supplies.

Proud of Loans To Businessmen

Many successful business men of today can trace their rise in the industrial or financial world to a helpful loan given by a company having confidence in their ability.

All business men have known the need of money, yet few realize that such an organization as the Mansfield Provident company has been organized for the sole purpose of making loans to responsible people

The Mansfield Provident people proudly claim the honor of having fathered a number of successful business men. In so doing they have built up a reputation for discreet and honorable service to their clientele.

Housewives agree that for cleanliness, speed, ease of operation and economy, electric cooking—especially on a Westinghouse range—is "tops", according to Merle Pecht of the Martin Hardware company, 11 North Main street.

Most women are enthusiastic about the cleanliness of cooking electrically, he pointed out. Because no fuel is burned, there is no carbon, no smoke and no soot to soil drapes and furniture or smudge walls. Women report actual savings in cleaning time.

Electric cooking is fast, the new Westinghouse units making possible a speed of cooking that was never before dreamed possible. Electric cooking is easy—all you do is prepare foods in the usual manner, turn on the switch, set the automatic timer. The range turns itself off at the proper time.

Sworn records show that electric cooking is economical. Current cost is low, and there is an additional savings on food. Since there is no oxidization in electric cooking, there is no waste of valuable juices, less waste of food values.

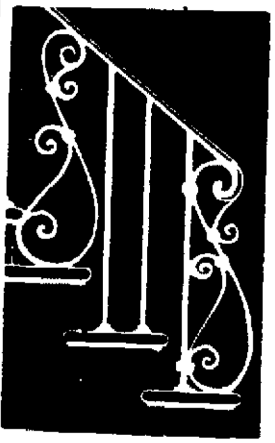
Women can see the new Westinghouse range at Martin's new complete electric kitchen, recently installed in the store, Pecht said.

Ornamental Iron Safety Factor

Ornamental iron, always used prominently in the decoration of homes and buildings, has recently come into its own as a safety factor, according to I. W. Miller, owner of the Miller Ornamental Iron company.

Use of ornamental iron railings as protective devices on both interior and exterior stairways was the out-growth of suits brought against home owners and owners of public buildings by persons injured in falls on the premises, Miller pointed out.

No home, no building is free from the danger of suit brought by a person injured. For that reason, ornamental iron has proved an investment in protection, Miller continued. There are hundreds of designs to choose from, or railings and grills will be made to order, he said.



There's Many a Slip

Expert Tells How Trees Add To Home Value

It takes years for trees to grow, years for the tiny saplings you set out to become tall and sturdy trees

Time was when this was the only way trees could be had on ones property. It was a long and heart breaking process for often the old home would be worn out before the trees had grown.

It is no longer necessary to wait. Trees can now be transplanted even large trees. In fact a miniature forest can be planted around your home between seasons. When you consider the value of your property, the amount of money invested in it, and its even greater value to you as your home, it is easy to understand why a few more dollars will make it still more valuable and still more homelike.

Trees and shrubbery enhance the value of your property, and cost little compared to their value.

The McNeal Tree service is meeting this demand for better surroundings for home, business house and plant. They have a full tree and landscape service. They are recognized as tree experts and Ohio and Michigan are dotted with their work. Their assistants are also experienced and they are fully equipped for any work in this line.

Now is the best time to obtain estimates and plans for spring planting At any rate it is well to be all set when conditions are just right Consult the McNeal Tree Service located in the Richland Trust Building.

Jim Brown Handles Lines of Building Supplies

The name of Jim Brown has become a household word in virtually every rural community in the eastern half of the nation

Started back in 1889 as a tiny retail store, the Jim Brown organization today has stores in four cities, including Mansfield, and large warehouses in Cleveland and Memphis.

Specializing in farm supplies and household needs, Jim Brown manufacturers many of the products he sells.

At the beginning of the organization, fence and wire were the principal articles sold by Jim Brown, but now his stores can supply almost anything the farm home needs.

In the past 50 years Jim Brown has built the largest roofing and fence supply organization in the United States, dealing direct with the consumer. Roofing, fence and paint distributed through the Jim Brown stores are manufactured by the same organization that sells them.

Included in the articles sold in Mansfield by Jim Brown are farm cultivators, clothing, hardware, washing machines, plumbing supplies, stoves and ranges, radios, wall paper, refrigerators, harness and dairy supplies.

Housing Guild Makes Home Building Easy

Just one year ago the Home Materials company announced the formation of the Mansfield Housing Guild with headquarters at their offices at 36 Orange street. Today scores of Mansfielders are enthusiastic in their appreciation of the sound advise, unlimited information, and practical suggestions they received on embarking on their greatest adventure—the building of a new home.

Until now prospective home owners have had no place to go for complete advise on a new home or home improvement . . . no simple method by which they could obtain, in advance, cost figures for their home reduced to simple and understandable terms . . . the down payment required and monthly payments necessary. In many cases the prospective home owner is surprised to learn that if he has a lot which will appraise at 20 per cent of the total value or a lot appraising at only 10 per cent down payment, his monthly payments are less than he is at present paying for far less attractive and less modern rented quarters. These payments, if desired, can be made to include taxes and fire insurance as well as principal and interest payments.

Mansfielders find today on visiting the display room of the Home Materials company that a model suburban subdivision has been set up with the use of minature scale models of actual homes which have been built recently in many Ohio cities.

Plans, specifications, and accurate estimates of the price per month on each of these attractive homes have been set up so that a prospective home builder can readily see just how much home his circumstances will permit him to own.

Realizing that many people are not familiar with the procedure necessary to the securing of proper financing for a home or home improvement, the guild has arranged to take this burden off the home owners shoulders. Loans are secured through local building and loans, banks, representatives of large insurance companies, and through financing as set up by the Federal Housing Act.

PINK AND BLUE

A bathroom with walls painted soft petal pink has the bathtub and shower niche painted delphinium blue. The floor is covered by a deep blue rug with narrow white stripes for border. A deep blue bath mat with tall white monogram matches the floor. A pink enameled wicker clothes hamper and a delphinium blue shower curtain complete the color harmony. The fixtures are white.

Softened Water Brings Winter Weather Comfort

Soft water is a satisfying convenience all the year round, but during the cold winter months its advantages are most appreciated, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau says.

On wash day in mid-winter clothes are as fluffy, white and clean smelling as the sun-dried summer laundry, when softened water is provided in the home. In addition, softened water cuts the annual soap and cleanser bill in half, because it makes a rich, plentiful suds with less soap. It gives silks and laces longer life by washing out all the dirt from the fibres of the materials.

Soft water protects the natural texture of the skin, which is inclined to be chapped and roughened by winter weather. The prickly rashes and blemishes which appear on the skin of small children are avoided when the water in the home is conditioned by an improved water softener.

Water softeners are available on the market from small portable softeners that can be attached to any faucet, to automatic softeners for the entire water supply to the house. These softeners condition the water by filtering it through a layer of zeolite and gravel. Zeolite has the unique property of taking out calcium and magnesium from the hard water and replacing it with soft water sodium salts. This action is instantaneous and automatic, according to the Bureau.

in southeastern Europe with reports that three secret agreements had been signed with France providing planes and guns for King Carol's nation.

A protest from Germany was expected soon as a result of Rumania's freight rate boost from 12 to 40 per cent increasing the charges Germany would have to pay for needed oil supplies.

Gunfire Rocks Villages In Luxembourg Sector.

BRUSSELS—(AP)—Artillery fire of increased intensity was reported to be shaking houses of the frontier villages of neutral little Luxembourg today while heavy German troop movements were sighted across the Moselle (Mosel) river.

Unusually heavy road and rail traffic was visible across the river. A steady stream of cavalry, cyclists, infantry, ammunition and food columns have been noticeable since Saturday.

The Obermosel Zeitung said barracks had sprung up over night halfway between Nennig and Besch in the Rhineland region.

British Capture Ship Trying to Run Blockade.

LONDON—(AP)—The German freighter Wahehe, 4,707 tons, which attempted to run the British blockade from Vigo, Spain, to her home port, was reported today to have been captured by a British warship which foiled a scuttling attempt.

The Wahehe was listed as the 25th German vessel captured during the war and increased total captured tonnage to 98,290. In addition, 28 German ships totalling 152,891 tons are listed as destroyed by scuttling, or other causes.

Six German ships were reported Feb. 13 to have left Spain in attempts to run the blockade to Germany. Two have been captured, and another, the Orizaba, was reported last night to have sunk after striking a shoal near Hammerfest, Norway.

British and neutral shipping losses for the week ending Sunday night were reported by British authorities as the lowest of any week in the war. Four British ships of 17,778 tons and three neutrals of 8,850 tons were reported sunk.

It was announced today the British steamer Clan Morrison, 5,936 tons, had been sunk by a mine in the North sea. An East Indian seaman was killed, and 15 injured men were landed at an east coast port Sunday.

Average weekly loss of British and neutral shipping since the war began Sept 3 was placed at 13 ships of 43,700 tons.

Report Nazi Vessels Sunk In Arctic Fight.

BERGEN, Norway—(AP)—Reports received here from the northern-most tip of Norway credit British-French warships with sinking two German vessels near the Arctic coast of Finland.

The reports, from Vardoe, 50 miles northwest of Finland's Petsamo fjord, said the ships had been sunk in the Petsamo vicinity, but did not say whether they were warships, or merchantmen, and gave no details of the action.

The Petsamo district shore now is in hands of the invading Russian army.

At this point, the coasts of Russia and Norway are only a few miles apart.

Final Institute Speaker Says Revitalized Confederation Probable Solution.

ing the United States, might get together and propose it. An armistice will not be possible until the present Nazi leaders are removed before the blockade against Germany becomes as disastrous as in the World war.

"There is little hope of an understanding between nations as long as we must deal with dictatorial leaders whose word can't be trusted. We must get rid of them first."

The proposed conference for a world peace should meet in a neutral country that has little interest in the present war and wait until the passions cool before drawing up a treaty, he asserted.

"We should profit by the experiences of the last war and the results of the Versailles treaty, remembering that it may have been responsible for some of the present chaos in Europe. I have often heard Germans complain of the treatment they got after the World war, and we shouldn't repeat that," he said.

The confederation's first duty in settling a prolonged war would be to decide on the aggressor and then quit helping that country.

He criticized the United States' continued trade dealings with Russia and Japan, aggressor nations in present wars, and the help we gave Italy when that country invaded Ethiopia a few years ago.

"We supply oil and scrap iron to Japan to use in its war against China and then we take up a collection to send to the suffering Chinese. Along the same line, we continue our trade relations with Russia, helping her to carry on a war against Finland, and then we organize a nation-wide campaign to raise funds for the Finns. There's nothing consistent about that."

"The League of Nations, which had a number of good points, failed because its makers built on the belief that war is the moral concern of all nations, near or far, little or big," Dr. Gerig said.

"War is not of equal material concern to all nations. It is hard to get interested in another man's war, we have learned."

A continental federation would correct that weakness of the league in that nations would be grouped together according to geographic location and would therefore have similar interests, he continued.

The Federal Union, proposing a unification of democracies with a common defense, trade area, and government, would not be likely to succeed because democracy is not suited to all peoples, Dr. Gerig said.

"All we could ask in such a program would be that a government would not constitute a threat to the harmony of the union, regardless of the form of rule" he said. "The principle may be sound, but it is idealogic."

"Possibly 15 democratic countries, including the United States, Great Britain France, Australia, South Africa, and others could control from 60 to 80 per cent of the world's resources and enforce a blockade on a belligerent nation, but Germany and Russia, for instance, might combine and provide something difficult to deal with," he said.

To questions asked during the forum period that followed his lecture, Dr. Gerig replied:

(To a query concerning Sumner Welles' peace mission to Europe)

"It is a traditional thing to offer a third party to contact belligerents in times of conflict, and Mr. Welles should come home with some valuable information about the European situation.

"The best way for this country to stay out of war is to end it quickly. We will never enter a war to help another country but because our interests are jeopardized.

"We won the last World war, created a lot of boundaries in Europe and then stepped out and let the countries shift for themselves

"Russia may want help from Germany in Finland so Russia will be in a position to defend herself against Germany. That's how they trust each other.

"The European war is on in earnest and I predict there will be no peace until there is an upheaval inside Germany. England and France are playing a waiting game, hoping to starve out Germany.

Answering a question about which way Mussolini will go in the war, Dr. Gerig said: "He will come in late with the winner."

Dr. Gerig was introduced by Atty. J. H. Gongwer, a member of both the Rotary and University clubs, sponsors of the Institute.

STILL UNPAID

24 Per Cent of City Garbage Bills Uncollected.

When the time limit for paying garbage bills expired Saturday afternoon there were still about 24 per cent of the accounts to be collected, according to Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the garbage department.

Of the $7,500 in accounts for the quarter, $5,700 had been paid by Saturday night.

Lingafelter said today that ashes are being collected now and that the accounts that are not paid up will not be serviced for ashes for another six weeks or two months, and that if the bill is paid after the city trucks have convassed a district, they will not be sent back for individual collection of ashes.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough remedy. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

CONFUSION AIDS PROPAGANDISTS, LECTURER SAYS

Avers Europe Knows U. S. Won't Fall for 'Old Line Again' in Launching Forum.

war. Then there's the feeding of glittering generalities such as the well known 'make the world safe for democracy.'

"Another device of the propagandist is to transfer a label from something that is good to the object of their promotion; another is testimonials, still another is the appeal to the plain folks, card stacking, such as the taking of quotations from the speeches of great men to fit the needs of the occasion is another, while the seventh is the bandwogan, the appeal that everyone is doing it except you."

Eggl pointed out that Americans should have an understanding of two vital facts, one that propaganda is an evil that cannot be avoided and that the taking part in the forming public opinion is an obligation that cannot be shirked.

"There is evidence in the past, there are indications in the present that strong, unprincipled forces have and will attempt to mould American public opinion on controversial issues," he said. "Not the least important of these questions is our probable involvement in the present war."

Eggl charged that a great amount of the current confusion in America has been caused by "our so-called American liberals."

"The manner in which they have sponsored crack-pot philosophies and programs all in the interest of freedom of the press and expression amounts almost to treason," the speaker asserted.

"We Americans must learn that there is a law of God, a natural law, which is changeless and fundamental. Any philosophies contrary to these fundamentals is not freedom but treason."

He said there are two ways in which Americans can avoid a repetition of 1917. One he said, is by setting up a counter propaganda and the other is to revitalize Americanism and Christianity.

"We should tell Europe in no uncertain terms that Americans desire pease, justice, respect for human rights, and a return to God and Christianity. In a way we are consummate fools. Our liberal laws permit almost any agency or individual to publish, say or display any idea, philosophy or program that appeals to them. We pay no attention to the assaults which radicals make upon our sense of taste, upon fundamental truth and upon treasured ideals.

"We permit a wide variety of foreign lecturers from all countries to pass across the length and breadth of the land, telling their versions of European problems and innoculating us with the virus of sympathy, fear, hatred, and discontent. How many American lecturers are enjoying such patronage in Europe."

He said there was a time when the United States flooded Europe with propaganda literature.

"Some of your forbears and mine came to this country because they were attracted by the pamphlets with which railroad companies, steamship lines, manufacturers, and state immigration bureaus flooded Europe.

"We sold them the material advantages of our country and gained a population that has helped to build the United States into the greatest power on earth. If we could sell American material assets to Europe in the 19th century, why, I ask, can't we sell Europe American spiritual and political ideals in the 20th century and gain peace and decency for the world?

"This is not an easy project to revitalize Americanism and Christianity. It will call for the utmost in Christian patience and sacrifice. If it is done, however, we need not fear the wiles and designs of the propagandist; we need have no fear that American public opinion will be lead again into a fruitless war and misery.

"Indeed, the moment we bring God back, the revolutionist will go out; the moment we fit action to the meaning of the ten commandments and the guarantees of our constitution, the feverish preachings of Communism, Nazism, force and war will be stricken inarticulate and become as meaningless as the tongues of Babel."

The second lecture in the Open Forum series will be delivered at the hotel next Tuesday evening, March 5, with Dr. W. T. Sullivan, professor of European history at DeSales college, Toledo, as the speaker. His topic will be "Peace or War?"

Fred Walters presided at last evening's opening lecture and introduced Prof. Eggl.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1940.

"Gone With the Wind" at least serves to revive an old question as to whether school histories are unbiased.

Seems as if that wonderful display of evening stars came along just to show people how lovely things are outside of this earth.

It's Elliott Roosevelt's idea that most of the troubles of the country can be eradicated by "laughing heartily"—which indicates that even son Elliott realizes the humor of the situation.

Example of Efficient Police Work

MANY parents of young girls in Mansfield and vicinity will breathe a sigh of relief over the success of police efforts to capture the man who has confessed molesting eleven little girls within the past nine months.

While, happily, none of these children was physically harmed after being picked up and driven into the country, the experience was such as to be a dreadful recollection to each of them—and one to which no innocent child should be subjected.

A city of Mansfield's size, and even smaller communities, cannot escape at least occasional temporary presence of various types of perverts, who sometimes operate for a considerable time before detection, as in this instance.

It is this fact that makes necessary constant vigilance on the part of law enforcement officers, parents, school authorities and all other normal persons, in order to protect girls and boys of the community against this danger—and to make children understand that, under no circumstances, should they permit a stranger to entice them into an automobile or to a suggested meeting place.

Some idea of the efforts involved in gathering evidence and apprehending a person of this kind is gained from disclosure that, for the past nine months, the entire Mansfield police department, the Richland county sheriff's office, the state highway patrol and police officers in vicinity towns, have co-operated in work on this particular case—with commendable success.

Retirement Age and Pensions

WHEN some more sensible system of fitting people to jobs has been developed in this country it will be recognized that age, in itself, has little to do with the matter of retirement or discharge—and that it is continuance of interest and ability that really counts.

And there will also be more of an inclination to find employment suitable for older persons, instead of abruptly dropping them from payrolls because of physical slowdown in some particular kind of manual work.

Under ordinary conditions it would appear that 70 is a desirable retirement age, with pension thereafter based on reserves accumulated through the years of productive work —as has long been the practice of railroads and as has since come into vogue in some other lines of public and private employment.

The recently advanced idea that competitive employment should stop at the age of 55, 60 or 65, so as to open jobs for younger people, is actually an admission that this country is already over-populated, insofar as ability to care for its people is concerned—or to open opportunities through which they can care for themselves, as had been the earlier intent.

Yesterday's layoff of a city waterworks employe above 90 years of age, with assumption that he had heretofore been performing his work satisfactorily, indicates that years do not count strongly in determining the ability of an individual to hold a job—that it is really the physical and mental condition of a person, regardless of age, that should be the controlling factors.

For most people, however, it would seem that the remaining years above 70 might better be devoted to leisure, cultivation of a hobby, enjoyment of acquaintanceships, and the light chores of home and yard, rather than continuance of the routine tasks of a regular job.

Women's Work In Wartime

WOMEN seem to be playing a bigger part in the Russo-Finnish war than ever before, at least in modern times. They do not appear, so far, to be doing any actual fighting, but they engage in collateral work hardly less important. This is probably true on both sides, but the work of the Finnish women is better known than the Russians'.

Women and girls there are engaged, of course, in the hospitals and the first-aid work back of the firing line. But they are far more than mere nurses. The "Lotta" girls not only drive ambulances as was done in the World war, but they carry stretchers, give first aid, operate field telephones, handle dispatches and do various other essential things immediately behind the firing lines and even within the fighting zone.

They also wear revolvers and know how to use them when necessary. And from present indications, thousands of them will probably be in the trenches before long, fighting side by side with their men.

More Small Families

DR. EDWARD S. GODFREY, Jr., health commissioner of New York, in making his annual report to the governor, added the opinion that the declining birth rate had touched bottom. He expects it to move slowly up hereafter.

"The absolute and relative decrease in the number of births not only in this state but in the country as a whole, as well as in other civilized lands," he said, "has led to uneasy speculation regarding the catastrophic possibilities of this condition. However, it now appears that the effect of the social forces which have been responsible for the almost unbroken fall of the rate in the last quarter of a century has practically spent itself."

Others may consider him too optimistic. World-wide stress, large-scale unemployment, wars and threatened wars also would [illegible] against a rising birth rate. But Dr. Godfrey [illegible] that the birth rates of [illegible] Europe, [illegible] which had been declining steadily [illegible] have either remained static or [illegible] slightly during the last five years.

Furthermore, [illegible] the reduction has represented only the [illegible] limitation of families. For example, in New York City the total number of births dropped from [illegible] in 19[illegible] to [illegible] in 1935, but the number of first births rose in the same period from 29,000 to 34,000. There were fewer children but more parents.

Word comes that an old shoe, thrown at a Pennsylvania wedding, [illegible] the bridegroom more unconscious than he had been a moment before.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Except in tone of voice, there is so much similarity between Glenn Frank's Republican program committee report and the Democratic platform of 1936, as enlarged upon since, that the likenesses are at least as striking as the differences.

Compare the core of the two documents:

Foreign Policy.

Republican — "Scrupulous neutrality." Democratic—"True neutrality." Republican—Defense of the hemisphere. Democratic—Sufficient military force to resist aggression. Both urge keeping out of war by avoiding inciting incidents, commitments, or dangerous emotions.

Agriculture.

Both hunt increased markets for agriculture at home and abroad. Both are for reciprocal trade negotiation, although the Republicans would subject each agreement to congressional ratification. Secretary of State Hull says that would kill the program. Both would keep down excess production by acreage control, and both would boost farm returns by subsidities so long as necessary.

Business.

Each lambasts the other spiritedly for mumbo-jumbo relationships with business. The Republican program would foster private enterprise by "protective" rather than "restrictive" governmental measures. The G. O. P. calls for a "socially protective framework of regulation." The Democratic platform says business is its own worst restriction, and urges ending monopolistic restrictions on trade.

Government Finance.

Republican—20 per cent reduction in Federal spending. Balanced budget by 1942. Democratic platform — "Reduced expenses," and bring a balanced budget "at the earliest possible moment."

Taxes.

Republican—Cut high personal income surtax rates, abolish certain business levies, make future federal and state bonds taxable. Democratic—Tax on "ability to pay." Not too friendly to reducing business levies, although they imposed, then cut out, the corporate surplus tax.

Currency.

Republican — Abolish presidential emergency monetary powers, restore gold standard when a competent committee says it is wise. Democratic — Keep presidential monetary powers. Very much in a dither about whether, when, or how to restore gold.

Relief.

Both are for relief for all in need. Republican—Administer relief in states with federal grants in aid. Democratic—Keep control in federal hands.

Social Security.

Republican — Expand and improve administration of social security—pay as you go. Democratic —Keep step with ever-increasing ability of America to provide high standard of living. 'Big 'reserve'' scheme modified.

Power.

Republican—No more yardstick TVA's. Recognize the right of municipal ownership. That could mean something akin to the New Deal's rural electrification program. Democratic — Continued yardstick — carrying policy into Bonneville and Coulee dam area.

Labor.

Republican—Amend Labor Relations act to safeguard employers. Separate its administrative and judicial functions. Fully protect organizing and bargaining. Democratic—In 1936 fairly contented with Labor act. Still insists upon protecting labor position but giving way in favor of amendments.

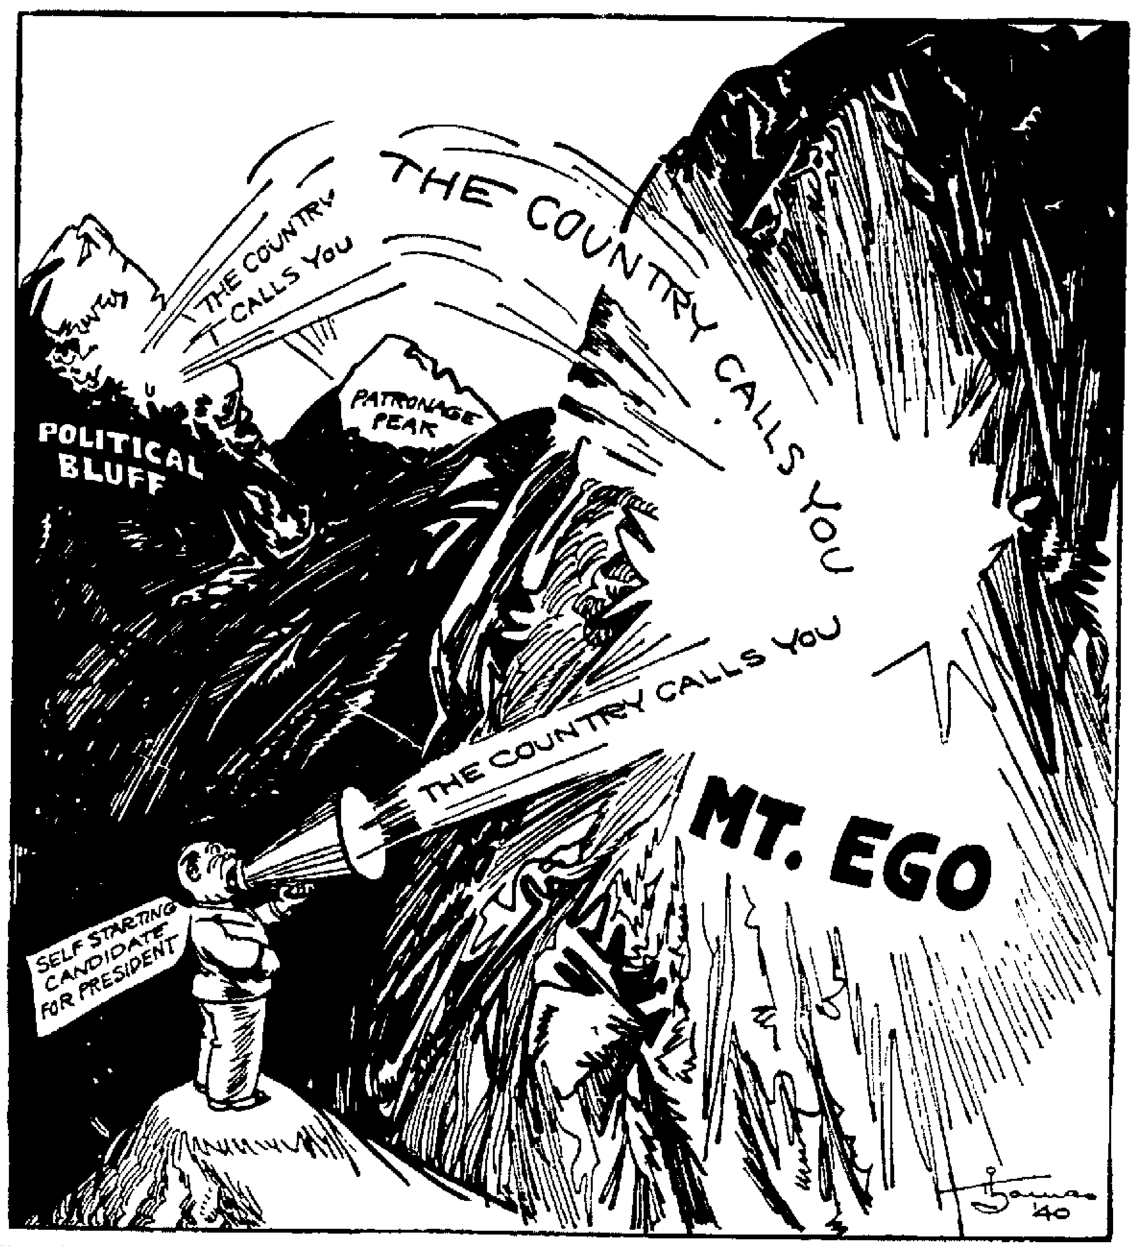
THE ECHO FACTORY.



Plan Rough Going for Tricksters

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THE house of representatives' District of Columbia committee is just starting an investigation of the activities of clairvoyants, fortune tellers, palmists and miscellaneously occult folk in Washington.

Most city governments treat this crew pretty much as vagrants—chase 'em out of town, in fact. The national capital, however, never has interfered with them. Consequently they've done a land-office business for years on the District's bank of the Potomac. They range all the way from Gipsy crystal gazers to semi-scientists.

An investigation of 'em isn't governmentally important, but it's funny.

Such a congressional quiz was conducted several years ago, but it petered out without any definite steps having been taken to regulate the profession. Now another inquisition has been voted, under the chairmanship of Representative William T. Schulte of Indiana, to take up the work, for whatever it may amount to.

Harry Houdini.

Before the last investigatorial body the late Harry Houdini was the outstanding witness. Houdini was a "wizard," a sleight-of-hand performer. But he laid no claim to supernatural power. He simply said he was a trickster. The others he denounced as mere fakers.

He told his story to that effect and left Washington. Then the regular necromancers cut loose. Houdini was needed back again, to rebut their testimony. The committee wired to him. He came. Seating himself in the witness chair, he flipped from his pocket, onto the table in front of him, a little wadded-up ball of yellow paper, with the remark, "I'll give $1,000 to any medium in this room who'll tell me what's on that paper."

"Why," answered Representative Frank R. Reid of the investigatorial group, "that's the telegram we sent to you, asking you to reappear before us." Houdini started violently. "I said," he exclaimed, "that I'd pay it to any 'MEDIUM'." "Well," instantly cried Reid, "I'm a medium. I always knew I had that occult power. Where's my $1,000?"

Reid never got his $1,000, but the incident spoiled that investigation.

Astrology.

There was a celebrated astrologist in Washington — "Madame Marcia." She was in close touch with Mrs. William McKinley and professed to have foreseen the McKinley assassination. Superstitious folk believed it. I knew her. She lived up on U street. She said she didn't much believe in spiritualism — the "spirits," she admitted, had a tendency to fool you. But the stars, she alleged, are infallible.

Professor Marcus Lamar, another professional, verged on being a genuine psychologist. He'd put on a spiritualistic performance if a customer insisted on it, but he much preferred to study an applicant's mentality and personality and then give his patrons the advice that he honestly believed best adapted to the latter's especial requirements. I once saw and heard him conducting one of these investigations. Upon its conclusion his visitor said, "Yes, but what'll I do?"

This fretted the professor, "How the heck," he exclaimed angrily, "do I know what you'll do? All I can tell you is what you OUGHT to do." There isn't much faking about that kind of business.

It's often stated that a good many congressmen are patrons of the capital's necromancers. I asked Professor Lamar if this was true. "One thousand times no," he rejoined. They're too sophisticated to believe in ghosts and too conceited to consult a really competent adviser."

Investigator Schulte.

Schulte will do a good job of it. He was a "magician" himself befor he got into politics—a legitimate sleight-of-hand performer, like Houdini; a showman; not a bogus soothsayer. He's still a paid-up member of the International Alliance of Theatrical Employes.

"We're going to get rid of this bunk, legerdemain and alleged mind-reading in Washington," he promises. "It's been rampant too long already."

The last bunch of investigators' weakness was that they weren't well enough acquainted with the game they were trying to investigate. They couldn't see through the tricks that were played on them. The tricksters, however, can't put anything over on Bill Schulte.

Health and Diet

Where the Doctors Select Patients.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MY colleagues in the United States are terribly perturbed about the possibilities of socialized medicine. It might comfort my fellow physicians to see how smoothly it works in Mexico, where I saw many things of medical interest on my recent southern jaunt.

There was a phantasy in one of Samuel Butler's notebooks which described a topsy-turvy situation in which, instead of cooks applying to housewives for positions, the mistresses applied to the cooks. And the understanding and good-tempered mistress got the beautiful and accomplished cook. In our land the patients select their physicians, and the physicians do not always want the ones they get. But in enlightened Mexico the physicians select their patients, and they are allowed to treat the diseases in which they are most interested.

I noticed what I thought was a very sensible attitude of the Mexican laborer to fatigue. I saw an old man carrying a bundle on his head, and all of a sudden the "afternoon let-down" seemed to get him. He just squatted down in a doorway, rested his bundle, and fell fast asleep. I understand that here, up north, the idea prevails in some offices that when the afternoon let-down occurs, the office force is mustered and put through some exercises to wake them up. The poor things go back to work even more tired than before the restorative was applied.

How much better is would be, instead of further fatiguing them or recommending a jolt of some awakening concoction at the soda fountain, to provide couches for them and allow a 20-minute snooze! I wager the work would be done twice as well after that as after an exercise period.

I went among people in Yucatan that were on as low a level of civilization as I have ever seen. They live in and off the jungle—they build their houses of straight sticks and thatch; they go barefoot, they eat the bananas and fruit which grow wild and hunt the wild turkey and the deer. I must say they looked a very healthy lot.

No Rickets.

I must have seen a thousand little children, going around almost naked, and in that land of sunshine I saw not one case of rickets. "Foot imbalance" seemed to be unknown. And the mouths I examined which had not the benefit of tooth brushes or tooth paste were filled with gloriously shining natural dentures.

Future intervention in disease is an article of implicit faith with most of the population around Mexico City. The shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe is the only healing shrine I ever visited. Outside the churches they sell little silver votive offerings shaped in the form of the part that is diseased.

Before the cathedral I found only arms and legs. The healer there must specialize in orthopedics. But the Virgin of Guadalupe is a general practitioner, for there were votives of hands, ears, eyes, hearts, and the domestic animals: prayers could be made for a sick pig, donkey, [illegible] cat, dog, even for an automobile.

Timely Editorial

Money Well Spent.

Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York and presidential candidate in 1928, was recently quoted in defense of constantly increasing educational costs as saying:

Daily Bible Thought

For our light affliction which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. —2 Corinthians 5:17, 18.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Last summer the president moved heaven and earth to get congress out of Washington before it passed the Barden amendments which he believed would emasculate one of his favorite measures—the Wage-Hour act.

When congress adjourned without passing the amendments, Roosevelt's friends feared he might have even a tougher battle when congress came back in January. However, congress has been in session for two months and little has been heard of the amendments, although they can be called up any time under a house rule. Odds are the amendments will be dropped.

Number one reason for the change of heart by Wage-Hour critics is Colonel Philip Fleming.

Fleming, dapper little army officer, assumed an appeaser's role after he succeeded Elmer Andrews as head of the agency. He reinterpreted certain sections of the act and quited many critics, mainly in the South.

The cautious colonel privately has instructed his investigators to pass up any case when there is any doubt as to whether it comes under the act, and although this conservative policy has riled liberals and labor leaders who demand vigorous enforcement, their complaints to the White House have got nowhere.

Note — Another important development is the fact that the author of the sweeping amendments, able Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina, has cooled on the whole idea. He has had numerous conferences with Colonel Fleming and is working out ways and means by which all the Wage-Hour kinks can be ironed out administratively.

Deaf Man's Tale.

Secretly Edison makes something of a joke of this infirmity, and likes to tell stories on himself. Best of these is regarding a Roosevelt cabinet meeting which was discussing the Arlington radio station jutting into the air not far from the new Washington Gravely Point airport, and which constitutes something of a hazard to aviators.

The question of 550 acres was mentioned, which brought an immediate remonstrance from Secretary Edison, who has charge of the Arlington naval radio station.

"But, gentlemen," he said, "we don't need that much acreage. What can a naval radio station do with 550 acres? We'd be accused of wasting the taxpayers' money. I must vigorously protest against it."

Edison says that he continued to talk about saving the taxpayers' money, and how the navy didn't need 550 acres, and thought he was making an excellent speech. Then suddenly he noticed smiles on the faces of his cabinet colleagues.

Finally they let him in on the fact that the conversation had switched from the Arlington radio station to the Gravely Point Airport, and that the 550 acres which he so vigorously opposed, in reality was needed for the airport.

Washington On 3rd Term.

STORY within the story of the discovery of George Washington's surprise letter in defense of a third term is that President Roosevelt knew of its existence two years ago. However, he never mentioned it, though New Deal intimates who have come out for such a potent weapon.

A photostat of the letter from Washington to Lafayette was first sent to Roosevelt on Washington's birthday in 1938 by George L. Rees, Brooklyn, N. Y. historian and collector of rare documents.

"I wanted to smoke him out," recalls Rees. "But it was no soap. He only sent me a polite note thanking me for the 'original greetings.' I waited, thinking some of his friends might get hold of the letter and publish it, but nothing happened."

Rees waited two years and then made a second attempt to gain national recognition for the precious manuscript which he had unearthed from the dusty files of the Library of Congress. He walked into a New York newspaper office with his find and shyly asked if it would not be timely to publish it in view of the third term furore.

The letter made headlines; for the refusal of President Washington to accept a third term set a hitherto unbroken precedent, and the note to Lafayette repudiated this accepted theory.

"I can see no propriety," he wrote to General Lafayette, "in precluding ourselves from the services of any man, who in some great emergency, shall be deemed, universally, most capable of serving the public."

How Reese discovered the letter is a story in itself.

Because there were no organized political parties in Washington's day and in view of his known predilection for exceptional men in the public service, the 60-year-old Brooklyn historian says he "could not conceive of George Washington opposing a good president from continuing in office for three terms."

Acting on this hunch, he spent days combing through hundreds of Washington's letter in the manuscript section of the library. The task seemed hopeless until he found the first president's ancient, leather-bound letter copy book, under date of April 28, 1788, while Washington was living in post-war retirement at Mount Vernon, Rees found the letter he was looking for.

Labor Probe Antics.

THE house labor board investigating committee can't match the slapstick antics of its tempestuous rival, the Dies committee, but it has its moments. Here are two of them:

Representative Routzohn: "You say you were born in Cincinnati. Were your parents living there at that time?"

Mr. Phillips, NLRB Regional Director: "Yes, they were, sir, especially my mother."

Representative Healey: "Miss Boyls, we can't hear you over here at all."

Miss Boyls, another NLRB lawyer: "Do you want me to repeat what I said?"

Healey: "No, but speak a little louder. If you will look toward the jury instead of the counsel all the time, I think we can hear you."

Counsel Toland: "Not all the time, Miss Boyls. Give me a look once in a while."

* * *

Merry-Go-Round.

COUNT Leone Fumasoni Biondi, Italian newsman in Washington, says: "American citizens have forgotten the Ethiopian campaign. The good-will between Italy and the United States has never been better in my twelve years here than it is now." . . . Accompanying Welles on his European junket is Lucian H. Johnson, summoned from the U. S. embassy in Panama on five hours notice. He flew to Washington, failed to find winter clothes to fit his six-foot-three lean frame, flew on to New York for a ready-made shopping tour before the ship sailed. . . . Asked if it is true that former dictator Gomez of Venezuela had 125 children, Venezuelan counselor Luis Coll-Pardo said, "I think the report is slightly exaggerated." General estimate in Venezuela is eighty-three children.

Starlight In Valley

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT IS LATE when I lay aside my book and walk out upon the low front porch of our little cottage. The night is lovely—clear, cold and very quiet. I touch the roughly-sawed pillars of the porch and frosty downy flakes come off and fall down on my feet and upon the floor. My shoes crunch with a metallic sound on the frozen snow as I walk up the path toward the barn. Gaunt dry weeds and brush upon the hillside slope above, stand motionless, shrouded in a soft, crisp whiteness.

I breathe deeply of the keen night air and feel the cold tang almost burn my nostrils. A pleasing sensation follows as I walk on.

The valley is asleep in winter starlight. There are no travelers on the highway. The stream is silent. Our tall maples stand mute, each framing, with its tracery of twigs, a thousand stars.

No lights are to be seen in neighbors' windows. The rustic dwellers are gone to rest, their modest farm homes, each with its surrounding meadow flat, nestled safely in the shelter of the hills.

Close together in the western sky, Jupiter and Venus seem to sing together' as the morning stars did long ago. Their generous twinkling beams seem to hold delightful rhythm. The Great Dipper spreads across the northern valley rim and higher in the clear blue I see the lights of Mercury, Mars and Saturn. How cold and far away they seem, yet sometimes a pointed silver beam reaches from my moistened eye to where those moving planets are!

I love the peace that settles like a quiet dream about our neighborhood tonight. I love the undulating brilliance of the heavens where a man can rest his eyes and stretch his soul. I love the eerie shadows of the wild folk, moving undistrubed and natural, along the valley trails. I love the knowledge that other woods dwellers are safely sleeping in their nests of leaves in hollow logs, or hidden in the good earth itself.

Our valley is a small one, neither wide nor rare in its geography. Yet the snow covering gives it a feel of vastness; the purple shadows, the spangled sky, the vast quiet spaces, give a natural setting for that rarest of jewels, solitude. My heart is glad as I return to the little house where my family sleeps. This is a wonderful land to live in, where any farmer who looks may, from his barnyard, get a clear view of the stars.

CHAPTER V.

The weeks that followed were the happiest Star had ever known. Working with Nina Lambert was an education in itself. Nine was such a delightful person. So warm-hearted and kind toward any one she considered had had a raw deal. Dramatic and humorous, sophisticated and full of pep. Her apparently endless vitality was a source of never-failing admiration to the girl. The writer could dictate for several hours, rush out for a late luncheon, have guests for tea, and after dinner return to her desk begining where she had left off with an ease which was astonishing.

"Where were we?" Nina would say. "Oh, yes, they had just met on the ship. . . . Harry knew that he was going to love her the moment their hands touched. . . . Come, Star, get going!"

She would sit in the swivel chair puffing at innumerable cigarettes or pace the floor clad in the flamboyant costumes she donned the moment she entered the house. Even if some one were waiting to see her, Nina would insist upon changing her dress. On the street she was more conservatively gowned but in the privacy of her own home her love for color ran rampart. The brown hair streaked with gray, which she was always threatening to dye and never had touched, was curled in tight little ringlets all over her head. No wonder people were crazy about her, Star thought. She idealized everything Nina said or did. The telephone rang constantly. She was always being invited to lunches or dinners or teas. Her house held a continual succession of celebrities as well as a number of interesting looking men who professed themselves in love with her, yet even Star could see that their adoration was impersonal. Appreciating "dear Nina" was one of the smart things to do, quoting her, laughing at her, pointing out her inconsistencies. Yet with none of them was she really intimate. Her contacts sparkled on the surface and rippled like shallow pools which had no depth.

Under her generous tutelage Star blossomed into a new personality. Nina gave her tips on manners and behavior which fell upon fertile soil. Star read the books Nina suggested, and spent her afternoons at concerts and lectures Nina recommended, usually accompanying her choice by a ticket she herself would be unable to use.

Recognizing this as a period of preparation Star spent no time longing for the masculine companionship so desirable to the average girl of her ago. Some time she hoped to be married and have a home and children, but she was too discriminating to accept anything but the best. Obedient to Nina's shrewd advice, she discouraged the flirtatious advances of the men who came to the house. Star learned to smile and be friendly without being either familiar or flippant. She managed to steer a safe middle course which took nothing they said seriously and permitted no liberties, yet did not offend them.

"I'm very proud of you," Nina said one night as Star went about emptying the overflowing ash trays and straightening chairs after an unusual hilarious evening. "You couldn't have behaved better if you had been my own daughter."

She accompanied the praise by a casual pat on the shoulder which brought tears of appreciation to the girl's blue eyes. Did Nina have any idea how much her approval meant to her secretary? Probably not, Star thought, wanting to tell her but feeling the words choke in her throat. The habit of reserve was too deeply ingrained for her to express emotion easily so she said only, "Thank you, Mrs. Lambert! You've been so kind."

"Nonsense!" Nina replied lightly. "You've been a great deal of help to me."

* * *

There was a bond of affection between them which seemed on its way to becoming permanent until the day Nina's son came home. Robert Lambert arrived unexpectedly, although Star who was typing in the writing-room, knew him the instant his youthful, attractive face appeared at the door. She would have recognized him, even if his photograph had not been in front of her. He was so like his mother. Just an enthusiastic, less sophisticated copy, with Nina's own sparkling gray eyes and warm-hearted smile.

"You're Star, aren't you?" he cried, holding out his hand.

"And you're Mrs. Lambert's son."

"Bob to you!" he grinned.

Star smiled in return.

"Your mother will be so pleased to see you. She has been wishing you'd come."

"Well, I'm back to stay for awhile. I've the promise of a job in October but until then I might as well play around."

"That will be lovely," the girl said warmly.

"Yes, won't it?" Bob retorted, gazing at her so steadily that she could feel the color creeping into her cheeks.

From the beginning she did not feel that sense of caution with Bob which had always kept her away from other men. Perhaps because he was Nina's son and she admired Nina so much she felt close to Bob.

When her employer came home, she found the two of them with their heads almost touching as Bob explained to Star the advertising layouts he considered responsible for securing the promise of a job.

Was it surprise that sharpened Nina's voice as she called, "Robert Lambert, what are you doing here?"

They had been too absorbed to hear her although she had tramped up the stairs with her customary heavy tread.

"Nina!" he cried, rushing to embrace her. "Darling, I have been pacing the floor waiting for you to come home."

"Yes, I could see that," Nina said drily but she managed to smile. "Stand away from me so I can look at you. You're overweight. Why don't you exercise?"

"If I weren't such a gentleman, I might return the compliment," he grinned, turning to Star for sympathy, but the girl had slipped from the room, leaving mother and son together.

* * *

He did not see Star until the following day, as she decided to take advantage of his arrival by calling on her own mother. The only way to forestall Mamie's appearance was to check in regularly just after pay day and give her a share of what Star was making. Mamie accepted her daughter's donations as her divine right and since Star managed to time her visits when Joe was not at home they passed without friction. Tonight she had bought a steak and eaten dinner with her mother who was less unpleasant than usual. Even so Star's heart sank as she realized more than ever the difference in their relationship and that of Bob and Nina. She returned to her employer's more depressed than she had been since the day of Mamie's call.

The door to the writing-room was closed and she could hear mother and son in a vivacious conversation interrupted by shouts of laughter. Wouldn't it be fun, Star thought wistfully, to be as close to your mother as that?

The next day, however, she appeared at the breakfast table looking as serene as if she hadn't a worry in the world. Nina usually had her breakfast on a tray but she was breaking all precedent to eat with her son. Perhaps that was responsible for her lack of cheerfulness. Sensitive to every inflection of the older woman's voice, Star noticed that Nina was not herself, but Star did not realize that from the moment she had seen them together Nina Lambert had a premonition of what would happen.

Nina knew that Bob's interest in Star was different from that he had shown in any other girl. Nina guessed with what secret emotions only she could have told that her son was falling in love. She watched in silence as Bob followed Star about. He insisted upon her company, including her in everything they did. Nina was not even surprised the day she came home and found her secretary in her son's arms.

"Well," Nina said composedly from the door of the writing-room where she had just witnessed the romantic scene, "I seem to be intruding."

Bob's face was radiant. Without losing his hold on the girl in his arms he cried, "Look at her, Nina! Did you ever see anything so lovely? I'm mad about her, darling!"

His mother fitted a cigaret in the long amber holder and seated herself in the swivel chair.

"I'm pretty fond of her myself," she reminded him and hoped he didn't guess how difficult this was for her to say.

"Star's usually pale face bloomed with color. Her blue gaze was diffused with joy and the utter surprise of all that was happening to her.

She faltered, "You're sure you doin't mind, Mrs. Lambert?"

"Mind?" mocked Nina whose hands were shaking so that she could scarcely bring the holder to her lips. "Because my son finds you charming?"

"There's more than that to it," Bob said, suddenly serious. "We're going to be married."

His mother winced at the finality of his tone. For the first time in his life Bob had not even made the gesture of consulting her.

"What does Star have to say about that?" Nina asked.

Star brushed the hair from her face as she often did when she was confused.

"It all seems too wonderful to be true," she admitted. "Bob is so much like you I couldn't help loving him. It seems as if we had known each other always."

"Good Lord!" exploded the writer. 'Must you talk like one of my heroines in a moment like this?"

Star's face flamed but Bob laughed.

"Pay no attention to the woman," he advised. "She's wise cracking to cover up. Well-known novelist jokes to keep from bursting into maternal tears."

"You idiot! You complete moron!" jeered Nina but Star could see that there really were tears in her gray eyes.

Pulling away from Bob, she ran to her employer's side.

"It never could have happened if it hadn't been for you!" she cried gratefully. "You have made me believe in my own future."

"No doubt about that," Nina thought, remembering her words of several weeks ago . . . "You can associate with any one. Marry any one . . . " She patted Star's hand and rose. "Well, I'll be running along and leave you lovebirds. I suppose you aren't planning to be married overnight."

"Not until I go to New York," Bob admitted. "But when I take over my job you'll have to find a new secretary."

He looked so eager and young and determined that his mother could not bear to look at him.

Star said, "Don't you want to work now, Mrs. Lambert? I've been waiting for you to get home."

"Not now," Nina replied.

As the door to Nina's bedroom closed behind her Star looked at Bob thoughtfully.

"She's awfully upset."

"Naturally," he agreed, pulling her down beside him in the big, winged chair. "Nina is just an old-fashioned mother at heart. She likes to boast about how modern she is, and pretends to be my best pal, but the truth of the matter is she's really as silly about me as an old hen with one chick. And I adore her for it," he added loyally. "I think it's cute."

RELIEF RETARDS CUPID

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Judge James C. Crumlish barred the 22-year-old son of an alleged relief chiseler from marrying until $800 in relief payments had been restored to the state. The jurist said that the youth must give up any idea of marriage until he and four other children repaid the relief debts of their mother.

CONSTIPATION
Tests at World-Famous Hospital Show How To Help Nature Produce Her Own Gentle, Complete "Daily" Bowel Action!
NEW YORK: Constipation sufferers rejoice! For now violent cathartics and laxatives and harsh "roughage" products, many of which are habit forming and are often irritating to bowel lining—can be avoided.
You can now actually help Nature produce her own gentle, complete "daily" bowel movements—thanks to the patient study of 16 Scientists.
You see if waste matter in the colon isn't kept moist it becomes hard, dry, caked and results in constipation. These scientists discovered that a "little daily dose" of Kruschen actually keeps this waste matter moist, soft and easy to expel. Also acts as a mild antacid and kidney diuretic.
There is no nausea, no griping, no violence with Kruschen. Hospital tests report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Inexpensive!! Only a trifle for a jar that lasts weeks. Over 245,000,000 jars of Kruschen have been sold throut the world. Kruschen must do the work!

TOPLESS SUITS PAY

SOME of the biggest top scores including even games that were not dealt into the cards are made by fine tournament players through bidding four-card suits which contain no top honors An opponent sitting at the left of such a suit may wind up doubling the contract partly because his honors are located advantageously over the declarer's His chagrin is deep if he finds those honors in the dummy, sitting over him where they can kill off his honors

Most assuredly West had every right to expect his honors to be sitting over the enemy s honors in the heart suit but he was sadly disappointed when he saw the dummy He began to fear—and he was right—that he had doubled his opponents into game

The diamond Q lead to the A was followed by a switch to the club 5 which the A won Declarer sent the heart 2 to the J, west ducking returned South with the diamond K and led the heart 8 West ducked again and South let the 8 win following with the 10 to the A then a losing club finesse West fired back another club then South made West use his last trump on the good diamond 10 This time West returned another club, so the declarer took his last heart last club and spade A giving up a spade at the end He had lost to the opponents only one trick in each suit making his doubled 3-Hearts for a luscious game

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

For an instant he gazed blankly at her then he stammered

'Oh' You marked them How ingenious''

He was almost babbling but the training of years reached out and gripped him and the next second he was his composed self again

'How many people know this?" he asked sharply

But she was equal to the emergency

"Only I knew ' she said 'But now we three know of it You Madge and myself

'I should advise" he said looking at me ' that no one else save your father should know of this mark at present '

"That can be very easily arranged" I said demurely knowing very well that Dicky and the Underwoods would share any knowledge my father was given

"Will it be convenient for me to see Mr Spencer about this at once?" he asked next

'He has been so very ill" I said 'that the nurse is keeping us all out as much as possible I only see him rarely But I will go to him and—'

It was Olga who quickly interposed a protest

Oh no' she said That should not be necessary You see him at least once a day, don t you, Madge?"

'Twice usually ' I told her laconically

"Have you made your second call yet today?'

'No I expect to see him in a few minutes"

"Then,' she said briskly and there was in her manner the sureness of the competent executive 'why can t you tell him all about this when you see him and let him decide whether or not he wishes to see Phil or even me"

"I think that is an excellent idea ' I said "I will go directly to him now If you wouldn't mind waiting here a little longer

'That decision is not mine to make' Philip Veritzen said

'If you mean I'm deciding for you, Phil" Queen Olga said with a smile "don t hesitate another half second Sit down and let s resume our talk where we left off '

I am yours to command, my dear he said

Open Drive for House Roll Call on Direct Finnish Aid

REPUBLICANS SEEK RECORD VOTE ON LOAN

Fish, Senior Member of House Committee, Claims Enough Votes for Move.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A determined drive to force a roll call vote in the house on a measure granting beleaguered Finland a direct, unrestricted loan of $20,000,000 was opened today.

If the move, led by Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York, ranking Republican on the house foreign affairs committee, proves successful, the membership of the lower chamber would be forced to go on record for, or against, direct aid to the little Baltic republic.

Rep. Sol Bloom (D.) New York chairman of the foreign affairs committee, declared the roll call attempt would be ruled out on a point of order.

Fish countered with the announcement that he had garnered sufficient strength to force a roll call vote. He predicted that the house will vote the direct loan.

This development came as the house opened five hours of debate on the senate-approved bill increasing the lending facilities of the import-export bank by $100,000,000—$20,000,000 of which is to go to Finland as a non-military loan.

The powerful rules committee, after a stormy meeting, gave the measure legislative right of way and voted it to the floor with two amendments adopted previously by the banking and currency committee.

It was learned that there will be a strong move to eliminate one of these which provides that money loaned by the bank may be used for the purchase of commercial airplanes, easily convertible into military aircraft. The other amendment would prohibit loans to governments now in default on their debts to the United States.

"I object to this round-about way of providing aid to Finland," Fish declared. "What we are doing is giving the import-export bank $100,000,000 with which it will be able to shape for foreign policy.

"If we want to help Finland, and I think we do, we should give Finland a loan."

Fish was joined by others, including many Democrats, who have authorized bills to make direct loans. Rep. Gifford (R.) Massachusetts, a member of the banking committee, charged that "the way this bill is drawn now, Finland isn't sure of getting a dime."

A Finnish legation official disclosed that orders were being placed in the United States for infantry cartridges and shells for mortars, machine guns, artillery and air-craft rifles. A total of about $5,000,000 will be spent.

Government reports disclosed that Russia is spending more than double that amount each month for war materials in this country. Average monthly purchases by the Soviets are running about $11,000,000, more than Russia has spent in this country since 1931.

Prince Says He Sent Money For Support of Son

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "I have sent money for my boy many times."

Thus did Prince David of the Georgian Mdivanis defend himself yesterday against charges of Blonde Mae Murray, his former wife and one-time screen star, that he seldom had aided in the boy's support.

Called as an adverse witness by Miss Murray's attorney, he said the last time he sent funds to Koran, 13, their son, "was only 10 days ago."

"I did not refuse to give my ex-wife money for our son, but I refused it when she wanted it for herself," he added.

Miss Murray, who testified she once was worth millions but now is dependent on friends for aid, is seeking $1,000 monthly from the prince so she can make a home for the boy. A New York court recently declined her plea for Koran's custody, ruling that she could not provide a satisfactory home.

Ralph Hughes, municipal court clerk, is one of the many Mansfielders who read the classified advertising section of The News-Journal Saturday and found the following listed under "Good Things To Eat:" Hampshire sows and gilts, nine pigs and one boar, Swiss and Shorthorn bulls, Guernsey cow with calf by side, two white goats, ten head of horses and a pair of mules." Hughes admits he likes beef and veal, pork is his favorite meat, that he ate horse meat while in the army and could go for a roast goat if necessary, but definitely draws the line on the mule meat.

However, instead of the relays crest on the cover page, it features a picture of Johnny Linta, former Mansfield high pole vaulting star, who established new relays and world's records in his specialty last year.

Honest, Mister—we didn't have anything to do with it. We address this to the anonymous chap, a little hot under the collar, who telephoned at noon today, wanting to know how come the city street department had cleaned the street of ice and snow in front of The News-Journal office, and hadn't done the same thing elsewhere. We can assure him that it wasn't the "power of the press" as he seemed to think—just a coincidence, that's all.

LOW BID WINS COAL CONTRACT

Funk Company to Supply Five Cars of Fuel to City Garbage Incinerator.

The city board of control today accepted the lowest of nine bids on the delivery of five cars of coal to be purchased for the garbage disposal incinerator.

The contract went to the Funk coal company which submitted a price of $3.59 per ton on coal delivered on the railroad siding at the garbage disposal plant. It was estimated that the total cost of the five cars of coal would amount to about $900.

The Funk bid was two cents per ton cheaper than the lowest competitors, M. L. Branyan Bros., Kallmerten-Baer inc., and Lomax Coal company, all of whom submitted bids of $3.61 per ton.

Other proposals were received from Simon Small and Sons, $3.68 per ton; B. F. Spence Coal company, $4.28; Voegele Bros. company, $3.91; Mansfield Lumber company, $4.36; National Ice company, $3.66.

The board also awarded to the Martin Hardware company the contract for delivery of 500 new garbage cans and 250 garbage can covers on the firms bid of $592.50.

This was $10 lower than the $602.50 submitted by the Goetz Hardware company, only other bidder.

PARK BOARD BUYS MATERIALS FOR LAKE PAVILION ADDITION

Award of the contract for delivery of materials to the Tinkey Lumber company yesterday by the board of park commissioners signalled to way for the construction of an addition to the North lake park pavilion.

North lake park association officials, who plan to do most of the construction work themselves, said that construction of the two-story frame addition will be started as soon as the materials are delivered.

They hope to have the new quarters, which will provide a new picnic shelter and a second floor room, completed for use by the time the summer picnic season arrives.

The contract was awarded to the Tinkey company lowest of three bidders on its bid of $733.34 for a quantity of materials including lumber, siding, flooring, shingles and window and door sashes.

Tinkey was $64 lower than the closest competitor, the Home Materials company, which submitted a price of $787.91. The Mansfield Lumber company quoted a price of $871.04.

Board officials said a bid of $637 submitted by the Alta Lumber and Supply company was disqualified because it was not complete.

City council anticipating the construction of the addition set up $1,400 in the annual appropriation measure to meet the expense. The board has already spent about $400 for steel girders for the framework.

TOLEDO SCHOOLS TO GET FUNDS

Attorney General Rules Full Share of Money Due.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Even though the term of the Toledo public schools was shortened to eight months this year, they will receive their full share from the state school foundation fund, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert said today.

The attorney general ruled in an opinion to State Education Director E. N. Dietrich that a school board, where it has normally operated its schools for nine months but this year operated only eight, may pass a resolution prior to July 1, 1940, lengthening the term for the next school year and thereby qualify to receive its regular apportionment.

STUDIES RELIEF STATUS IN BIG CITIES OF STATE

Expects to Call in Officials From Toledo; Talks to Cleveland Group.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker reiterated today that he intends to call no special session of the legislature to make further relief appropriations "until every available source of local relief income is exhausted."

However, the governor admitted that the heavy snowfall of January and February has upset the state's relief program.

Besides throwing hundreds of WPA workers idle, the heavy snows cost the highway department $250,000 for removal in January and probably as much this month, Bricker said.

He estimated that the loss to WPA workers due to inclement weather would approximate $10,000,000.

Later this week, probably Friday, the governor will call in Toledo officials for a conference on their relief problem, similar to the one held yesterday with Cleveland's mayor, Harold Burton.

Toledo officials, he said, were meeting today with Lucas county officials to determine what can be done locally to meet their relief problem.

Informed that Cleveland faced a relief fund shortage of $1,500,000 in 1940 despite a sharp increase in employment, Governor Bricker today called a conference of state, municipal and WPA officials for next Monday to discuss possible methods of alleviating the situation.

The meeting is to be held at 2 p. m. in the office of State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood. An increased WPA highway program is expected to be proposed to put to work a sizeable portion of the 60,000 persons now on relief in Cleveland.

At a meeting late yesterday with the governor, Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, revealed that present estimates indicated the relief fund would be short approximately $1,500,000. Needs for the year are estimated at $6,500,000.

No mention was made at the meeting, it was learned, of a possible special legislative session to consider relief.

The Woodland school led all others in the city last month in attendance, reporting 96.6 per cent. Hedges Junior high school, which is now consolidated with the Johnny Appleseed school, ranked second with 96.1 per cent. Hedges elementary was third with 95.3 per cent.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts from Miss Midnight's Diary.

This was certainly the season for Boy Meets Girl on Broadway, with 14 of the current 21 plays ending figuratively, if not technically, in a final fadeout—but it was not until last week, when the usually pessimistic Clifford Odets unveiled "Night Music" that the thing began to look like a Happy Epidemic.

Mr. Odets, whose dramatic philosophy up to the present has been that there is hope for the human race but not right now, seems to have written this current drama after a stiff shot of Pippa's Passes and the Stars and Stripes Forever, for it is full of the future of America and bright with everything's-right-with-the-world-so-long-as-we've-got-love—it is, in fact, "Two on an Island" with hair on its chest.

It is certainly an unusual sight to see three Odets characters skipping off the stage caroling happily at the final curtain, and it was certainly an unusually ermine Odets audience that watched them do it.

I can remember the time (last year, I think it was) when a Group Theater opening was a convention of blue shirts and grave faces, and women without much mink.

A boiled shirt coming out of a limousine was as rare as truffles on a dog-wagon menu, with the result that the Group first night usually looked like anybody else's tenth or eleventh, or even twelfth night.

But something has happened to the group, along with the Happy Ending. There were those cinema recalcitrants, Lionel Stander and John Garfield, nicely brushed and neatly resplendent in their dinner jackets; there was Burgess Meredith standing in the aisle applauding generously in a top hat. At Mr. Meredith's impeccable elbow was Miriam Hopkins, looking golden-haired and extremely pretty and wearing enough white chiffon and silver fox to be going to a Gilbert Miller premiere.

* * *

There were two kinds of excitement going on at El Morocco afterwards—the cafe society variety and the kind from the other side of the tracks. In the main room, snuggling against the plush banquettes, the Countess Vincent Orssich, whose difficulties with the count were at the moment being set into type in the local newspaper offices, was engaged in tete-a-tete with Fred Engle, better known as Luella ("Streets of Paris") Gear's husband. This caused some eyebrow-lifting, but when the Countess' former husband, James O'Gorman, strolled in the spectators practically stood on their tables to see what would happen.

Very little, they were all distressed to observe, did.

Mr. O'Gorman said: 'Hello, Helen."

The Countess said: "Hello, Jim."

Mr. Engle said nothing.

There was a small betting pool made immediately on the probable appearance of the Count, to complete the scenery, but the Count, at least up until 2 a. m., had not shown, and it is a matter of cafe society history that if a Count does not turn up by 2 a. m. he rarely turns up at all.

Out in the kitchen of El Morocco, where I am sometimes inclined to prowl looking for something in the icebox, drama was being played in the tragic manner. Salvatore Albertella, one of the swiftest of the waiters, kept dashing back and forth into the kitchen, and each time he picked up a dish of scrambled eggs or chicken a la king, he wept a little.

A weeping waiter is a very sad sight, especially in a place where everyone is having such a good time, and at those rates, so I inquired into the matter, and learned that it had to do with Love.

It is as simple as the plot of an Odets play. Salvatore loves Inez Baudana, 21, and described by her tray-toting swain as 'very beautiful and intelligent." She is American, but when she was 15 she returned to Italy to live with her father, and did not come back to those shores until four months ago, when she met and fell in love with Salvatore.

* * *

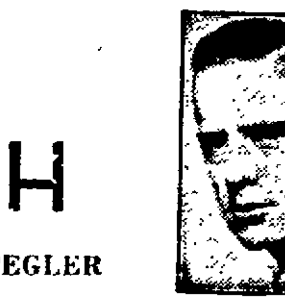
As they were on the verge of marrying, she recalled that she had promised papa not to wed until she had transported him to America. Inez would not be happy unless the old fellow were here.

And she had it all arranged for him to enter, and was on the verge of signing pepers testifying that she could support him, when she lost her pob in a department store.

That is why she and Salvatore the waiter cannot marry, and that is why Salvatore the waiter was weeping in El Morocco.

And it might be a comfort to the Countess Orssich to know that the waiter who pours her champagne has troubles, too.

FAIR ENOUGH



—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—When I start operations as Bishop Pegler under the amendment to the Constitution making religion compulsory and atheism a felony, I aim to organize a sort of clerical board of trade to divide up the new business and avoid any such unseemly scramble as the one which has disturbed the realm of labor organization under the Wagner Act.

Here, Congress gave the labor organizers a marvelous power of compulsion over millions of subjects, complete with a taxing privilege and tax immunity for their own treasuries. The leaders were unprepared to handle the rush, and consequently they fell to fighting among themselves for members and dues.

My idea is to take a census of all sects now existing and all the people who do not belong to any church and divide the new business peacefully under the eeny-meeny-miney-mo system. Or, if anyone prefers the ibbety-bibbety-sibbety-sab system, that will be all right with Bishop Pegler.

I am all for peace and co-operation, just so I get my share of the new business under the religious compulsion amendment to the Constitution. All those who now belong to religious congregations will be allowed to retain their present membership, but the great, unorganized or unaffiliated group of about 70,000,000 must be shared evenly.

* * *

As to just what does constitute a valid, organized religion of the present writing here we must be a trifle arbitrary for the sake of the general good. The church in which I have the financial good luck to hold an appointment as bishop, is not very prominent, but, like some rather obscure, no-account unions which were existing in a state of suspended animation by virture of mildewed old union charters when the Wagner Act came in, our legal status is 100 per cent.

Some of those old union charters were clean forgotten when the Wagner Act came in, but they have been documents of fabulous value from then on.

People just had to join those unions under these charters and pay fees, dues and assessments to the individuals who happened to own them. A church charter will be a gold mine under the religious compulsion amendment.

I understand that the Rev. Fr. Coughlin favors the Franco way, and I am glad to say that this way is okay with the Rt. Rev. Bishop Pegler of some church in Colorado. I am not yet sure of the name of this church, but I was appointed a bishop thereof several years ago, and I will fill in the blank when I find my diploma, which is somewhere around.

Under the requirements of the Franco way, all marriages must be performed by religious authority, and it takes no genius to see what that will mean to Bishop Pegler when he gets his share of the 70,000,000 unorganized Americans.

* * *

Bishop Pegler will get his cut of the marriage business at anywhere from $2 up to whatever the traffic will bear, with time and a half for elopements after quitting time.

He will get his regular grind for membership stamps on compulsory church cards. He will get collections to support his radio program, compulsory subscriptions to his church paper and compulsory funeral fees, and he can speculate in the silver market while raiding the market through propaganda.

And he need never pay any attention to the income tax, because churches are immune under the law. And anyone who interferes with him will be a dirty atheist Communist, subject to arrest on sight and life imprisonment in a concentration camp.

You may quote Bishop Pegler as saying that if there is a fair division of the new business he will be 100 per cent for the Franco way and an ardent supporter of Father Coughlin.

It gives Bishop Pegler a terrible start to think that he laughed when he unexpectedly received his appointment as bishop of that church in Colorado and was going to tear it up.

STATEMENTS by Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maki at their reception in New York that Finland is resisting the Russion invasion because we are an athletic nation" have reemphasized the claims for athletes as builders of leaders in military as well as civilian pursuits.

Prominent among the appraisals of the superiority of men trained in athletics for key positions in national defense was the consensus among 14 U. S. Army Major Generals following the World war that "athletic training is invaluable in the making of a soldier or an officer."

Their statements were amplified by the observation that athletes not only present themselves better equipped physically, but have superior qualifications for leadership as a result of the discipline of competition.

A post-war study among Western Conference Universities supports the conclusions stated by the group of officers. While the percentage of enrollment in service to be commissioned during the war was 4.7, it was found that of the 854 athletes from four Conference schools who were enlisted, 403 or 47.1% had been commissioned. The percentage of athletes receiving commissions further exceeded that of students who had enrolled, their proportion being less than a third.

* * *

Illinois carried its survey of athletes in the war to a study of those rejected for service. While 29.59 per cent of all applicants for the service were rejected, of that number only one was rejected for a cause traceable to athletics, a broken arm. None was rejected for a faulty heart, and the others were for defective eyesight, overweight, or hernia.

Coaching Journal Tells All.

IKE TRUBEY, Fostoria high school coach, came upon the following "Excerpts From an Athletic Dictionary" in one of his coaching journals and passed the article along. The definitions are as follows:

ALL-STAR—An athlete with a good press agent.

BENCH—Habitat of the subs and pants polisher of the nervous coach. Torture block of the athlete who broke training.

COACH — A teacher with an aversion to pie and cigarets and an obsession for students with lots of avoirdupois and inches.

DRUB—A sports term meaning to get sloughed or mopped. To beat a basketball opponent in a slow breaking game by more than two points.

EARFUL — That which the coach gives a basket ball player when he takes a long shot and doesn't make it.

LUCKY-STIFF—Any coach who stays longer than one year with a losing team.

PROSELYTING—Athletic manslaughter of the first degree. Kidnaping of minors. Hi-jacking and placing in involuntary servitude.

PUBLIC—The dear woosis for whom the sports writer is willing to defy any and all authority.

CHICAGO—(AP)—One more victory and the Big Ten basketball championship belongs to Purdue.

* * *

The Boilermakers, having only two games to go, can't miss sharing the title, but must defeat either Indiana Saturday or Illinois next Monday to clinch the championship.

* * *

Purdue moved into this highly advantageous spot last night by defeating Iowa easily, 50 to 29, while Ohio State was slapping an overwhelming 44 to 26 defeat on the pursuing Indiana Hoosiers. As the situation now stands, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio State are in position to tie the Boilermakers for the title should Purdue lose both of its remaining games. The season ends March 4.

Iowa was never really in the ball game with the smooth Lafayette five as two sophomores, Don Blanken and Forrest Sprowl, whipped the nets for 31 points between them. Meanwhile, the Purdue defense held Vic Siegel, Iowa ace, to one field goal.

Ohio State, champions last season, built up a 21-15 lead over the Hoosiers in the first half and added to this advantage with Gil Mickelson leading the way with a total of 15 points.

* * *

Illinois had the closest call of all the top teams, a desperate field goal by Capt. Bill Hapac in the last five seconds giving the Illinois a 42 to 40 victory over Chicago's basement crew.

* * *

Michigan returned to form to defeat Northwestern, 39 to 34, leaving the two teams tied for fifth place at the .500 mark. Minnesota took the measure of Wisconsin, 44 to 39, despite the fact Gene Englund, Badger center, scored 19 points, individual high for the night.

Play for Second Round Title in Church Loop.

The winner of the game will play the Mayflower combine, first round champion, for the league title Wednesday, March 13, Don Cram, physical director, announced today.

Glover Drops Close Decision To Peoria, Ill., Boxer In Chicago

CHICAGO — Beauford Glover, Mansfield lightweight fighting for the Cleveland team, was out of the running for Golden Gloves honors today—as the result of an unusually close decision won by Dick Scholl of Peoria, Ill., in last night's first round battles at the Stadium in the 13th annual Tournament of Champions.

* * *

Scholl's southpaw stance troubled the Mansfield boy from the opening bell and led to his defeat. There were no knockdowns, with the battle being principally one of infighting.

* * *

The crowd, at the end of the three rounds appeared divided on opinion as to the winner and there were a few "boos" when Scholl's hand was raised.

Benny Calla, bantamweight, was the only one of the four Cleveland team members to win last night. Calla advanced by decisioning Robert Bender of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

Harold Smallwood, Akron flyweight, who beat Paul Carbetta in the semi-finals of the Cleveland tournament, lost to Vic Saccoia of Detroit, and Max Schindler, Lorain featherweight, was beaten by Leon Haire of St. Louis.

* * *

George George, 175-pounder, of Lorain, another member of the Cleveland brigade, will make his debut in the tournament tonight.

Triumphs In Rough Mat Bout

Becker Wins Over Marino on Disqualification; Vern Heiser Also Wins.

IN SPITE of everything Bull Marino, the Manhattan mayhem specialist, could do last night at Tim Nolan's quality club show in the Armory, George Becker, Bull's fellow townsman, continued his upward climb in Midwest wrestling circles.

Climbing up the ladder right along with Becker was Mansfield's own Vern Heiser who took an easy eight-minute decision from Heinie Morganstern, also of Mansfield.

* * *

But to return to the finale between Becker and Marino—it was Marino's fight almost the entire way, and if the Bull hadn't become too over-anxious for the "kill," he might have had the match instead of George.

* * *

The Bull took the first fall in 30 minutes after a tremendous display of slugging, kicking and eye-gouging. To be specific, Marino launched three rights to Becker's chin, a body slam and finished off with a top body press.

Becker, angered by the rough treatment in the first setto, came back furiously to knock Bull down, bounce him off the ropes three times and then fall on him, winning in just five minutes with a top body press.

Marino, however, was not to be outdone. In the final fall he came out, tossed Becker through the air with the greatest of ease, knocked George "cold" with a series of pile drivers and then kicked him from the ring.

Before the count was finished, Becker attempted to get back in the ring. Bull kicked him off the ropes. Becker tried again to get in. Bull booted him out again. They repeated this performance, and then Referee Clarence Miller got mad. He said some things about the Bull's ancestors. Bull tossed Miller out of the ring for that. When Miller recovered, still outside the ring, he awarded the match to Becker.

Becker wasn't satisfied, though, and he climbed in to finish off Marino. Marino showed no inclination to continue, and the match ended.

In the semi-final go of the evening, Heine the Hun had little trouble with Walter Achiu, Honolulu-Chinese jui jitsu artist, taking two successive falls.

* * *

The Nazi took the first fall in 15 minutes with a body slam and top body press after he had slowed Walter down with a kick to the groin.

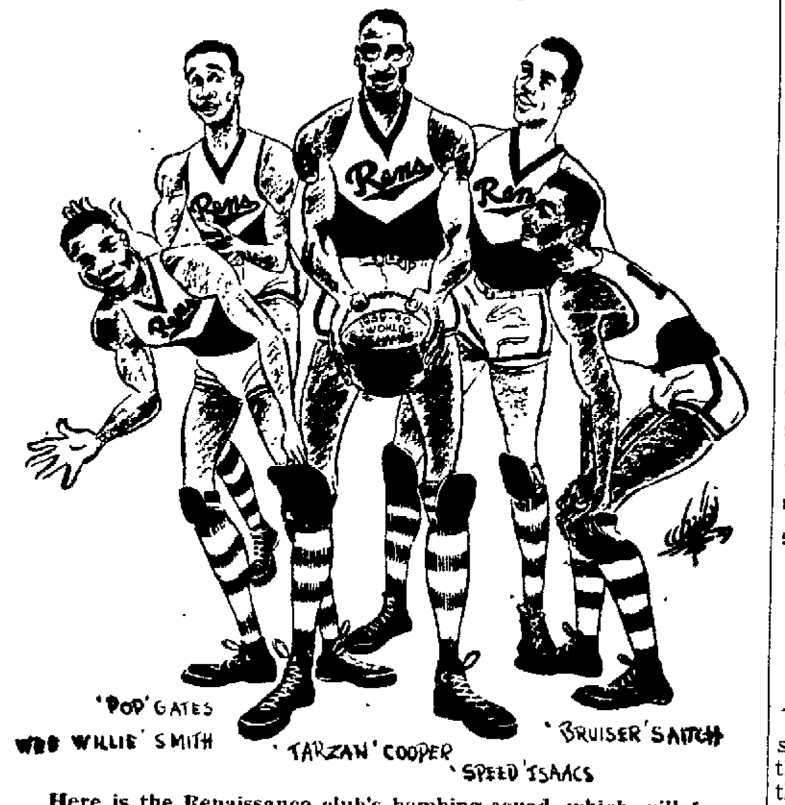
* * *

Aided and abetted by soap which he carried in his trunks, Hitler's boy Heine won the second fall in 9 minutes. Walter, apparently blinded by soap in his eyes, was no match for the fouling Hun. And the German retired to the dressing room with angry threats of the crowd ringing in his ears because he had kicked the Chinese several times after the close of the match.

REMAIN IN PLAY

NEW YORK — (INS) — Bobby Riggs, U. S. national champion, today had advanced a step farther toward the men's national indoor tennis championship. Included with Riggs in the quarter-finals were Don McNeill of Kenyon college.

Here's Rens' Bombing Squad



Here is the Renaissance club's bombing squad, which will face Chuck Chuckovits' Collegians on an all-star cage card sponsored by the City Class A league Thursday night at Mansfield high school. The Rens are being brought back to the city by popular demand. They defeated the City league All-Stars several weeks ago. "Tarzan" Cooper, six foot six inch guard, is regarded as one of the greatest basketball players in the game today.

The Westinghouse teams of the Mansfield and Lima plants will meet in the preliminary game at 7:30 p. m.

Tribe's Right Hand Wonders What Left Hand Is Doing

By LARRY HAUCK.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—From scattered sections of the nation came reports today suggesting much confusion in the Cleveland Indians' front office.

* * *

The hatchet man in the story is C. C. (George Washington) Slapnicka, bespectacled vice president of the club. He tried to chop a couple players off the Tribal roster.

The "I-cannot-tell-a-lie" story opened with the Philadelphia Athletics saying Cleveland offered Pitcher Johnny Allen and Catcher Frankie Pytlak for Catcher Frank Hayes (all are holdouts). This prompted the following:

From Cleveland—Frank Kohlbecker, Indians' business manager: "I know nothing of it."

From the Tribal train bound for the Fort Myers, Fla., training camp—Oscar Vitt, Indians' manager: "Get rid of Pytlak? No sir, not unless we get someone mighty good!"

* * *

Slapnicka, who early this month blamed his own "absent-mindedness" for letting Joe Vosmik slip out of the American League, silently awaited the Indians at Fort Myers. Then last night he spoke:

* * *

"I'm like George Washington caught with the hatchet.

"Yes. I wired Connie Mack and suggested the deal and would like to see it go through."

Forsythe of C League Compiles 280 Game

Misses Strike In Only One Frame as He Holds Spotlight at Meder Alleys.

A NEW Commercial C league record and one of the finest scores rolled in Mansfield this year was registered by Shannon Forsythe of the Siegenthaler Shoes last night at the Meder alleys.

After starting out with ordinary 153 and 160 games, Forsythe followed with a record-smashing 280 score in his final game.

Forsythe started off with a strike, spared in the second frame and then struck out with 10 in a row.

He led the Shoemen to a 925 final score and a pair of wins over the Liederkranz club.

Three-game scoring laurels were annexed by Stirtzinger of the East Side Night club, who upset 605 pins from games of 225, and a pair of 190's. The Ritz Nite club took team scoring honors with 2600.

The American Legion club held the spotlight in the Club league. Led by Pete Grohol's 647, which included a 232 and a 236, and Jimmy Smith's 243 and 608, the Legionnaires came through with a 2781 total and three wins over the Schoolmasters.

* * *

Ed Dunn compiled games of 245, 221 and 179 for a 645 total as the Hecht & Casey Coals defeated Galion, 2662 and 2251, in a special match rolled Sunday.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(INS)—A new world's indoor record in the 440-yard dash was held today by Roy Cochran, Indiana university track star. Cochran established the mark yesterday as Indiana defeated Notre Dame in a dual meet, 52 to 34. His time was :48.3, six-tenths of a second below the record set by Ray Ellenwood of the University of Chicago in 1936.

Vitt Sees Big Season for Florida-Bound Indians If---?

By CHARLES J. THOBABEN

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Florida-bound, the first contingent of the Cleveland Indians rolled toward its Fort Myers training camp today with the best prospects for a good season since Oscar Vitt became manager — and that's on no less an authority than the peppery leader himself.

Hurriedly throwing clothes into a large suitcase a few minutes before his train was due to leave late yesterday afternoon, Vitt had time to toss off a few advance opinions on his 1940 Tribesmen.

"The Yankees are still the Yankees and the world Champions," old Os' noted, "but they aren't any better, and in the last part of the season we handed them a string of beatings. Remember that doubleheader we took from them in Yankee stadium in front of one of the largest crowds of the year?

"When Bill Dickey starts to slip so will the Yanks, and Dickey isn't getting any younger. The [illegible] has been strengthened but Boston, Chicago and Cleveland will be the teams that will be up there fighting New York."

* * *

Vitt conceded that Mel Harder's late starting, Ray Mack's failure to hit when he was brought up from Buffalo in mid-season and Johnny Allen's return to form are the biggest question marks.

* * *

[illegible] feels confident that the club is headed for the best season since he took over the managerial reins two years ago. The second-base problem which long had dogged Cleveland managers is near solution, he [illegible] league pitching and it remains to be shown whether Oscar Grimes' knee operation from which he is now recovering will bother him.

Mack is more on the spot than any other member of the team—and Vitt is on it with him. However, Oscar feels certain that the home-town boy will make good, and his confidence is shared by Tris Speaker, who led the Indians in 1920 to their only pennant.

At a luncheon for part of the team before it entrained, Speaker pointed out that Mack, a Cleveland native, came up to the Tribe under great pressure last summer with great things expected of him by his home-town followers, and it was natural that he could not produce his best work.

"I think the boy will be a standout, perhaps another Larry Lajoie," Speaker asserted.

* * *

As for Harder, Vitt plans to let him take all the time he wants getting into shape. He won't pitch in exhibition games unless he is ready, because the manager thinks the star right-hander has been slow getting into form previously because of too early work.

* * *

Only Mike Naymick, the six-foot, eight-inch rookie hurler who is expected to become a first class pitcher with more seasoning, Paul O'Dea, a rookie outfielder, and Mack left Cleveland with Vitt, but other members of the team were to meet them en route to open the training at the new base in Fort Myers tomorrow.

The rest of the Tribe with the exception of any holdouts who may be left by then is due to report at Fort Myers a week from tomorrow, and then Vitt will have a chance to see how his opinions will be borne out.

There may be no holdouts at all by then, but [illegible] Frankie Pytlak, Johnny Allen and [illegible] Willis Hudlin have not been heard from by club officials.

In Memoriam To

FRED HUNT

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead, he is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there,
And you—oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There, as the love of Here.
Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—he is just away.

400 Feeder Cattle

We have received for sale this week a very nice selection of low priced feeding cattle.

These cattle are thin as result of the terrible cold winter in the West this year and the weights are the best. These cattle are not weighing within 50 to 100 pounds of what they did a month ago.

We also look for a sharp advance in prices in the next few weeks as it will be grass time and also there is a scarcity of light feeding cattle in the West due to last year's drouth.

We advise you to come in and buy these cattle at the prices we can sell them for. At the price of this feed now you can carry these cattle until grass time pretty cheap instead of waiting until grass time and pay a dollar a hundred more for your cattle.
